Coal miner criticizes mine safety

FAIRMONT, W. Va. (AP) — A veteran coal miner, who worked in the explosion-ravaged mine where 78 men are entombed and presumed dead, Thursday criticized safety conditions in the mine and said what he had seen "hasn't been at all good, not by any means."

Walter Sloveskosky of Monongah was a witness at a preliminary hearing into the disaster at Mountaineer Coal Co. No. 9 mine near Mannington. The big mine was sealed last Friday after attempts to reach the men for nearly 10 days failed.

Sloveskosky, a miner for 25 years and a worker in No. 9 for six years, said he had complained about conditions in No. 9 the Sunday before explosions and fire ripped through it.

Lewis Evans, safety director for the United Mine Workers union, questioned Sloveskosky about safety procedures. The union, along with the West Virginia Bureau of Mines and the coal company, is taking part in the preliminary investigation.

Sloveskosky said rock dusting—a procedure to minimize floating coal dust—was not what it should have been in No. 9.

Pleasure, excitement motive

Little girls accused of killing little boys

NEWCASTLE, England (AP) — Two girls, aged 11 and 13, stood accused Thursday of murdering two little boys "solely for the pleasure and excitement afforded by killing."

Prosecutor Rudolph Lyons described the case before Justice Sir Ralph Cusack as "possibly without precedent."

Contrary to usual practice in British courts, the names of the accused children and the victims were made public.

Norma Joyce Bell, 13, and Mary Flora Bell, 11—unrelated but next-door neighbors—pleaded innocent to charges of murdering Brian Edward Howe, 3, and Martin George Brown, 4.

The girls, guarded by police-women, sat on bench seats in the court instead of being put in the usual prisoners' cage. Their parents sat behind them.

Judge Cusack, hearing the case with a jury of seven men and five women, told them it would probably last several days.

Attorney Lyons said of the girls: "They are charged with two murders within the space of just over two months, murders committed by asphyxiation solely for the pleasure and excitement afforded by killing."

Lyons said the two girls were inseparable companions.

He described Mary, despite the difference in age and size, as "possibly the cleverer and more dominant personality, a girl with remarkable knowledge of the world."

The prosecution said Martin was found dead in a derelict house across the railroad tracks from the homes of the two girls and in an area used by local children as a playground.

The possibility of murder did not arise until the death of the other boy, Lyons said.

A day nursery near the girls' homes had been broken into and notes were found, obviously written by children.

One note read: "We did murder Martin Brown." Another warned: "You had better watch out, there are murders about..." A third said: "I murder so I may come back."

Lyons said the girls were questioned about the nursery school break-in and a handwriting expert established they had written the notes.

Lyons said that in the case of Brian Howe each of the girls roundly accused the other of murder.

The trial continues today.

Stroudsburg man, 33, killed in violent crash in 191 tunnel

Four others hurt, one still serious

By FRED WALTER
Pocono Record Reporter

HENRYVILLE—A 33-year-old Stroudsburg man was killed Thursday night when the car he was driving struck the Henryville Bridge abutment on Route 191. Four other persons involved were hospitalized, one is in critical condition.

Pronounced dead on arrival at the General Hospital of Monroe County was Isaiah Gardner, 33, of 83 N. Third St., Stroudsburg.

Monroe County Coroner John C. F. Foelker said the body will be held for an autopsy which will be performed today.

Kurt LeRoy Posten, 20, of 88 Elk St., East Stroudsburg, was reported in critical condition early this morning.

Three other persons were injured, occupants of a second car which barely escaped a similar violent crash with the Posten car. They are:

Joseph W. Fitzryk, 46, of East Stroudsburg, operator, with his wife, Mary L., 48, and his mother, Frances, 73, as passengers in the front seat.

Both women were injured when the impact reportedly forced their bodies into the windshield. Hospital authorities Thursday night said the mother will remain hospitalized.

Stroud Township policemen Paul Cilurso and Lauren Doty were first called to the scene at 8:30 p.m. Mount Pocono State Police then took charge with Trooper John Sarosky the investigating officer.

The bridge-tunnel is located halfway between Anasink and Henryville in northern Stroud Township.

According to police, the Posten car was traveling south on Route 191, approaching the railroad bridge and the car hit the bridge abutment with the right front (cause was not determined), made an apparent violent impact and a complete turnaround under the bridge-tunnel, bounced off the opposite tunnel wall, in the path of the northbound lane.

Fitzryk told police he tried to slow down as much as possible when he saw the Posten car but struck it enough to damage the front end of the car, barely escaping more serious injuries.

The last fatal accident at the same location occurred in 1963 when former Salvation Army Major Henry Baker's son, Gary, was killed in a similar violent crash.

Scott seeking new crime laws

HONOLULU (AP) — Sen. Hugh Scott, R-Pa., called Thursday night for new federal laws to fight crime.

Scott warned, however, that the war against crime "may be won or lost at the state level."

The senator made his remarks in a speech at the annual convention of the National Conference of State Legislative Leaders.

FBI arrest top Mafia man on conspiracy to move TVs

WASHINGTON (AP) — The FBI announced Thursday the arrest of a man it called a top Mafia leader on charges of conspiracy to transport stolen television sets across a state line.

The FBI said Russell Alfred Bufalino, 64, was taken into custody in his home town of Kingston, Pa.

FBI director J. Edgar Hoover said Bufalino "has been publicly identified as a top figure in Pennsylvania's" Cosa Nostra organization.

The FBI said Salvatore Todaro, 46, a dress manufacturer, was arrested in Buffalo, while a third man charged, John Charles Sacco Jr., 41, is already in the New York State Penitentiary.

The three were charged Thursday in Buffalo with engaging in a conspiracy to transport $25,000 of stolen TV sets from Buffalo to Pittston, Pa., to dispose of them, the FBI said.

Hoover said Bufalino reportedly is associated in operating several businesses in the Pittston area.

Sacco, a former city sanitation inspector in Buffalo, is serving a sentence in the New York prison in connection with a different case, the FBI said.

Bufalino was arraigned before U.S. Commissioner Neville B. Shea in Wilkes-Barre shortly after his arrest at his Kingston home.

Bail of $10,000 was set by Shea and Bufalino was released on his own recognizance for a further hearing sometime before Dec. 17. No testimony was offered at the hearing.

Asst. U.S. attorney Julius Altman, Wilkes-Barre, represented the Department of Justice at the commissioner's hearing.

Bufalino has been under a deportation order issued by the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service in 1958, but has successfully fought off legal moves to get him out of the country.

Bufalino describes himself as a dress expeditor. In 1964, while fighting the deportation order, he said he maintained office space in a textile plant in Pittston, and was employed by a New York City firm.

Student strikers storm S.F. campus

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Strikers stormed the San Francisco State College Administration Building Thursday and tried to get at Acting President S. I. Hayakawa, but were repelled by six policemen with drawn pistols and Mace repellent.

Several hundred police who had been held in reserve off the campus quickly cleared the quadrangle outside of about 2,000 persons in a club-swinging struggle.

At least 13 persons were arrested, including Dr. Carlton Goodlett, Negro publisher; and the Rev. Jerry Pederson, Lutheran chaplain at Ecumenical House, staging center for the demonstration.

As the crowd of about 150 that had burst into the Administration Building fled in confusion, one of them dropped a brief case.

Hayakawa reopened the strife-shaken college Monday.

Leaders of the strike, which has disrupted the college since it was called by the Black Students Union Nov. 6, made the march on Hayakawa's office at the climax to a lunchtime rally.

About 200 other police, stationed off the campus, quickly arrived.

Liz now Sir Ewan

In an unprecedented action disclosed Wednesday in Aberdeen, Scotland, Britain's Home Secretary ruled that Dr. Ewan Forbes-Sempill, the former Elizabeth Forbes-Sempill, henceforth shall be known as the 11th Baronet of the Forbes of Brux, or Sir Ewan. Sir Ewan, 64 (shown with his wife, his former housekeeper, in a 1966 photo), legally became a man in 1952. Ruling follows three-year dispute over succession to the 388-year-old title.

'Girls' book seen ending blind dates

PRINCETON, N.J. (AP) — The editors of Princeton University's intellectually oriented student newspaper turned Cupid Thursday.

They published a slim volume for selective suitors containing brief biographies and snapshots of 1,500 coeds at eight exclusive women's colleges.

The book, entitled "Who the Girls Are" and priced at $2 a copy, is a sequel to their often ridiculed, but avidly read 1965 edition of "Where the Girls Are."

If history repeats itself, "Girls" will be a best seller in college bookstores.

The 112-page manuscript, the editors solemnly explained, not only furnishes valuable data about the girls—their beauties and prudes—but also intends to abolish the old-fashioned custom of the blind date.

Peter G. Brown, a junior from Erie, Pa., who edited the volume, declared:

"This little book does no less than spell the demise, the defeat, the absolute abolition of that atrocious anachronism, the blind date. In fact, the purpose of 'Who the Girls Are,' is to take the blind out of the blind date."

The new edition also includes capsule descriptions of the eight schools Bryn Mawr, Goucher, Mount Holyoke, Skidmore, Smith, Sweet Briar, Vassar and Wellesley colleges.

The comments on the schools also referred to the availability and usage of marijuana on the campuses. John Stossel, business manager of the newspaper, The Princetonian, and supervisor of the project, said this was "regrettable in that it may offend certain people."

In March 1967, Angel Acevedo—then a 3-year-old toddler—was brought to the emergency room of Miami's Jackson Memorial Hospital after a car wreck. He had a brain concussion and a broken neck.

Dr. Gary Gieseke, a resident neurosurgeon, told his wife Haydee several days later about the paralyzed child no one came to see.

"Unknown to Dr. Gieseke," said Circuit Judge James Minnet, "his wife went to the hospital. He made his rounds one afternoon and found his wife sitting at this boy's bedside. That began the trail of love that just grew to adoption."

Minnet granted the adoption Wednesday. Angel, now 5, took his new name, Derek Allen Gieseke, with a new birth certificate to make it official.

After the adoption, the story emerged of Mrs. Gieseke's daily trips for five months from her home north of Fort Lauderdale to the hospital in downtown Miami, the doctor's battle with the Welfare Department to be named guardian and Mrs. Gieseke's 18-month search for the boy's mother to get consent for adoption.

Mrs. Gieseke, 24, broke the child's fearful silence after three days' visits. She brought a punchball, the first of many gifts.

"He was in need of somebody," Mrs. Gieseke said. "It became so normal it's hard to

Yule tree stars ease surgery cost

ROCKWOOD, Pa. (AP) — Families will be topping their Christmas trees this holiday season with "Paula Pyle Silver Stars."

Sixteen-year-old Paula, stricken with polio at 15 months of age, will undergo a kidney transplant several days before Christmas, and Somerset County residents are contributing to the $35,000 cost of her operation and hospitalization.

Persons making donations receive a "Paula Pyle Silver Star" for their tree.

"Every family will have a Paula Pyle star on their Christmas tree this year," said one Rockwood mother.

The team of surgeons at the Cleveland Clinic, where Paula has received treatment and medication for over a year, have a waiting donor—Paula's father.

John R. Pyle closed his garage in Somerset County last month and "hopes his Christmas present will let Paula see many more Christmases."

Doctors at Pittsburgh's Allegheny General Hospital discovered the deterioration in Paula's kidneys in August, 1967, while prepping the youth for a "post polio leg" operation.

Instead of undergoing an operation that would have rid Paula of her leg brace, the teen-aged girl began bi-weekly treks to Cleveland for treatment and shots needed to keep her alive.

Even with her father's kidney, Paula's future will be uncertain for five years, the time required for the body to either accept or reject a foreign organ.

Lab tests uncover 41 cases of Hong Kong flu in state

HARRISBURG (AP) — The Pennsylvania Department of Health reported Thursday that some 41 cases of Hong Kong flu have been documented in the state by laboratory tests — most of them in the Philadelphia area.

While the health department said it found no real outbreak of the new influenza strain outside the Southeastern Pennsylvania area, hospitals and nursing homes around the eastern half of the state were taking precautionary measures.

In Lebanon, Dr. John F. Loehle, city health officer, ordered both hospitals in the community and the county nursing home to ban visitors to prevent possible introduction of the virus there.

"We are now seeing more absenteeism among nursing and other personnel and some of our patients have shown a rise in temperature indicative of upper respiratory ailments," said Dr. Loehle.

Dr. W. D. Schrack Jr., director of the state health department's communicable disease section, said such a "sudden increase in viral respiratory ailments" is a key indicator of influenza.

But at this point, due to a critical shortage of Hong Kong flu-type serum, the state health department can do little more than pinpoint possible trouble areas, said Dr. Schrack.

To do this, the health department has set up a statewide "surveillance system," said Dr. Schrack.

Through the system, he said, his office gathers daily reports from Philadelphia, Allegheny County and 14 other regional centers throughout the state on absenteeism.

When high absenteeism is noted, he said, further investigations are made into the causes and if they are due in large part to upper respiratory ailments, laboratory tests of some of those ill are made.

Dr. Loehle said he also used the absenteeism indicator but added it "was thrown way off this week" because Thanksgiving school vacations extended through Monday and the opening of hunting season sent absenteeism skyrocketing in industry.

At Hill Farm nursing care center in Annville, administrator Earl Marshall said he instituted a similar ban on visitors Wednesday as a precaution.

Restricted visiting privileges were also reported at hospitals and nursing homes in Scranton, Reading, Lancaster, Taylor, Pottsville, Wilkes-Barre and in the Easton area.

Bans on visitors were most prevalent Thursday in Philadelphia area hospitals where a dozen institutions have complete or partial restrictions in effect.

In the Harrisburg area two hospitals reported high absentee rates among personnel but not yet at a level to warrant restrictions.

Sister Ursula, administrator at Holy Spirit Hospital in nearby Camp Hill reported the usual flu vaccine program for personnel has not been conducted this year due to a lack of Hong Kong type serum.

Polyclinic Hospital in Harrisburg reported a similar program scheduled for late December "as soon as the vaccine is available."

Since the vaccine is in short supply, Dr. Schrack said his department concurred with a U. S. Public Health Service recommendation that it go first to elderly persons and the chronically ill.

'New standards' GIs make grade

WASHINGTON (AP) — More than 90 per cent of the first young men who entered the Army under lowered mental and physical standards have turned out to be first-class soldiers.

This is reflected in a Pentagon study of results so far of a special two-year-old program designed to "salvage the poverty-stricken youth of our society" for military service and, later, for productive civilian life.

Under that program, the Pentagon accepts men who formerly were disqualified for draft induction or volunteer service.

The study found that 91 per cent of the first group of such men were rated "excellent in conduct and efficiency" after an average of 16.5 months of service.

About 84 per cent were promoted, some as high as sergeant. Only 3 per cent had been court-martialed.

"Field commanders in Vietnam and in the United States report that these men are well motivated and performing creditably," the study said.

The Pentagon did not indicate how many men were taken into the Army in this first group who entered service between October and December 1966.

However, the report claimed that "Project 100,000" had exceeded its goal of 140,000 such men accepted for military service in the first two years of the program ended in October this year.

On the basis of performance, the Pentagon said, an effort will be made to bring 100,000 "new standards men" into military service every year from now on.

"The revision in entrance standards is...resulting in a more equitable sharing of the opportunities and obligations of military service among this nation's youth," the study said.

Eligible men are those who: —Fail to score well on standard written tests but can qualify as fully satisfactory servicemen "when exposed to modern instructional techniques used in the military services and on-the-job training."

—Suffer from physical defects which can be corrected in a short period of time.

The report said that about 96 per cent of the "new standards men" had successfully graduated from basic training, with only 13 per cent requiring extra help.

Men who fail basic training are discharged.

State will conduct hearing December 18 for Wayne County school reorganization

By BERT WALTER
Pocono Record Reporter
HONESDALE — A hearing for a renewed attempt to reorganize Wayne County's 22 individual and jointure school districts into three will be conducted December 18 at the State Department of Public Instruction.

Revitalized efforts to reorganize the districts, which comprise nearly 1,000 square miles, began several months ago.

The original reorganization effort started in 1964, but due to opposition by school districts and the complexities of the county and reorganization legislation, the original plan was dropped, according to John Sutton, Wayne County School Superintendent.

The new reorganization

attempt would create the following three districts:

District One — The current Wallenpaupack Area Joint School District.

District Two — The Western Wayne Joint School District plus the independent Salem Township School District.

District Three — The Honesdale Union School District and five independent northern districts.

The Salem Township School District is vigorously opposing the reorganization plan.

A total 6,799 students are in the 22 Wayne County school districts of which 484 students attend school in Hancock, N.Y. and Deposit, N.Y. These 484 students are from four northern school districts, Sutton explained. Two of the northern districts are also opposing the reorganization plan, but not as vigorously as Salem Township.

Same as in 1964

Technically, the Wayne County reorganization picture is as it was in 1964, except now there is only one school district vigorously opposed.

The Salem Township School District proposes that one district be formed. This would mean that all of Wayne County and half of Pike County's geographic area, would comprise the single district. A large portion of Pike County consists partially of the Wallenpaupack Area Joint District which has allegiance in Wayne County.

Although the majority of the County School Board has endorsed the three district reorganization plan, the Department of Public Instruction must conduct the hearing since there is some opposition, Sutton said.

The Department of Public Instruction is expected to make some decision on the matter later. Sutton said he hopes the reorganization question will be cleared in the Spring.

If the state approves the reorganization, Sutton said action could be taken to formalize the three-district plan about July 1, 1969.

The 22 school districts include six separate systems, Sutton explained.

Sutton explained that even if the reorganization plan is accepted and put into action, the northern school districts will continue to send their students to New York State schools.

If the students were not taken to New York State, they would attend in the Honesdale area, Sutton said. The distance between Honesdale and the New York State Schools varies tremendously, however.

Currently, the students only travel some 11 miles to attend school in Hancock, N.Y. Sutton said. Aside from the close proximity, the Wayne County districts and New York State operate on five year contracts.

Vo-Tech survey planned in Wayne

HONESDALE — A survey will be conducted in Wayne County next month to determine the feasibility of starting a Wayne County Vocational-Technical School.

John Sutton, Wayne County School Superintendent, said Thursday that a student interest and business-industry survey is scheduled to be taken in January.

The surveys, Sutton said, are designed to determine whether students would participate in the Vocational Technical School and whether business and industry in the county would employ graduates.

Decision to conduct the survey was reached Thursday morning during a meeting with Clyde Messinger, area coordinator for Vocational Technical Education.

The probability and feasibility of a Vo-Tech school in Wayne County is linked with the outcome of a school reorganization plan for Wayne County.

See related story, this page

The Lackawanna County School Districts have invited the Wayne County districts to participate in its Vo-Tech School.

Sutton said the State Department of Public Instruction directed that no school district in Wayne County should participate in the Lackawanna County program until the reorganization is resolved.

Sutton added that if the survey reveals the Vo-Tech program is not feasible, then some districts would probably join with Lackawanna County.

Some of the 22 school districts in Wayne County are too far removed from Lackawanna County to participate in the program, Sutton explained, but added until the reorganization decision is made to formulate three new joint school districts, the participation cannot be justified.

Survey results

He explained that the County School Board should know by March or April whether Wayne County can support its own Vo-Tech School.

The county also hopes to learn by that time whether the reorganization plan will be approved.

Lackawanna County had set a December 31 deadline for Wayne County to participate in the Vo-Tech program.

"We can't possibly meet this deadline and won't meet this deadline," Sutton said. He explained, however, that Wayne County schools could probably participate later.

If the reorganization plan is rejected by the state, indications are that some schools will join the Lackawanna County Vo-Tech. This also holds true if the survey indicates it would not be feasible for Wayne County to have its own Vo-Tech School.

Duff heads Bangor school

BANGOR — Bangor School Board, during its reorganization meeting Wednesday night, elected Robley Duff as president, replacing Mrs. Charlotte Hough who has served as president the past two years.

Clair Pelfrey was named vice president. Attorney Edmund Turizo was renamed board solicitor at an annual retainer of $1,350.

Mrs. Hough was named delegate to the community college board and Charles E. Williams as alternate.

The board approved placing four sky-lights in each of nine interior classrooms in the new Junior High School building with construction at an estimated cost of $12,863.

Professional leaves
Dr. S. William Ricker, superintendent, was granted permission to attend a Schoolman's Club session in Harrisburg on Wednesday and Thursday. 65 members of the Future Farmers of America, accompanied by Lawrence Parvin and Gary Oiler, were given permission to attend the Pennsylvania Farm Show on January 15.

$80,000 awarded in Pike land case

MILFORD — Cyrus S. Lauer of Dingman Township was awarded $80,000 damages by a jury in Pike County Court on Thursday.

Lauer was involved in a civil action against the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania growing out of condemnation proceedings for Interstate Route 84 construction.

Lauer, who has owned and resided on the property involved since 1931, was represented by attorneys John Finan and Sanford Beecher of Milford. Representing the Commonwealth were an assistant attorney general, Jack Lindshaw and Harold Thomson Jr. of Paupack.

Items of damage to the Lauer property as discussed during the three day trial included: 45.95 acres taken for actual construction; 32.86 acres separated and without access and 13.97 acres with access but now separated from the main property and the flooding of 80 acres of land on a periodic basis which would prevent its use for building purposes.

The estimates of damage range from the $30,000 to $31,000 mark as quoted by appraisers testifying for the commonwealth to $173,000, a figure listed by one of the appraisers testifying for Lauer.

President Judge Arlington W. Williams and Associate Judge Randolph D. Gregory were on the bench during the trial.

Lions club projects planned

NEWFOUNDLAND — Community service projects and social and business activities occupied the Tobyhanna-Newfoundland Lions Club during their meeting at The Lancaster, South Sterling, at which Joseph Rice presided.

The 23 Lions present planned a Christmas party at Colonial Manor, Route 611, near Gouldsboro, for December 21, setting December 22 as a bad weather date. Reservations for the dinner party must be in by December 13. It will be a buffet dinner preceded by a cocktail hour at 7 p.m., and entertainment (but no speakers) will be part of the evening's festivities.

Michael Albano, Tobyhanna, and Arthur Frey, South Sterling, were named to head the Basket of Cheer Committee.

Rice reported that the Director of the Lackawanna County Branch of the Association for the Blind will be the speaker at the Lions Club meeting on December 10 at 6:30 p.m. at Blake's Beechwood, Tobyhanna.

Bomb threats should be halted

At least a portion of the burden has been lifted from the shoulders of area school administrators with the solving of the bomb scare telephone calls at East Stroudsburg High School.

However, administrators at Stroudsburg High and East Stroudsburg State College are still trying to solve the mysteries around similar threats at their schools.

School administrators normally work under tremendous pressure, but even more has been applied through a series of telephone calls that report the alleged planting of a bomb and the time at which it is scheduled to explode.

The entire plot has been repeated over and over again and on Wednesday reached the peak of frustration when all three schools received another bomb scare. The scare was so realistic and created such doubt that East Stroudsburg dismissed classes at 12:30 p.m. and Stroudsburg a few minutes early.

It is time that a stop is put to this practice. The calls are disrupting school, bringing concern to teachers and parents alike and causing great mental anguish for the administration.

A stop should be put to these telephone calls immediately. Police should do all in their power to halt the practice, even if it is necessary to bring electronic tracing equipment into play at this time.

The person or persons responsible for the bomb scare are apparently basking in the publicity made necessary by the threats. But, actually they are detrimental to school and family life and should be apprehended with all haste.

Unfortunately school administrators must clear the buildings at once, as hundreds of lives would be at stake if a real bomb was planted somewhere in the building. It is impossible for administrators to respond any other way than in a manner that guarantees the safety of each student.

Anyone knowing the person or persons guilty of the bomb threats is obligated to come forward with their names.

Questionable pay raise

East Stroudsburg has been praised for the manner in which it increased its budget over last year by $56,000 without increasing taxes.

The borough also deserves praise for the way in which it has banished the controversial occupation tax for the coming year.

Both of these moves were made possible this year. It is quite possible that this form of taxation may bring about other tax reductions in the future.

However, we take issue with the manner in which members of council have doubled their salaries since 1967, especially since at least a portion of the raise came at a critical financial period for the borough.

Councilmen increased their salaries in 1967 from $600 to $800 and this year have raised their pay from $800 to $1,200.

We fully realize that a councilman's work is never done and we know that they are under pressure from a number of angles. We also realize that one regular meeting and an agenda session each month are only a portion of their duties.

However, we also feel that a salary increase of $600 in less than two years is entirely too much.

Although borough income is now higher than at anytime in its history, it must be remembered that there will be rainy days ahead. Money must be saved for future expenditures.

The fact that each of the councilmen will now receive $1,200 is not important. There are those who really earn even more than this figure.

However, we feel that doubling a councilman's salary in less than two years is wrong and is not popular with the people.

It is fodder for further criticism, much of which is undeserved.

Becomes law December 16

Regulating trade key to gun control act

By GENE S. GOLDENBERG
Record Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — Without flurry or fanfare, the controversial Gun Control Act of 1968 will go into effect on Monday, Dec. 16.

Signed into law by President Johnson on Oct. 22, the basic objective of the act is to regulate the interstate and foreign trade in all guns and ammunition.

For the law-abiding gun owner, the new laws will merely cause delay in buying firearms and ammunition as well as making it extremely difficult or impossible to legally purchase firearms through the mails or in another state.

But the immediate effect of the act, which will be administered by the Internal Revenue Service's Alcohol and Tobacco Tax Division, will be to impose a massive record-keeping system on firearms dealers, manufacturers and importers.

Classified weapons

The only firearms which must be registered are those classified as "destructive weapons" — sawed-off shotguns and rifles, machine guns, deactivated war trophies, silencers, bombs and grenades. (The new law requires that all such weapons should have been registered by Dec. 2.)

But let us assume you are a hunter or sportsman who would like to purchase a firearm or ammunition for firearms you now own. How will the Gun Act effect you? What procedures will you have to follow?

If you are under 18, then you will no longer be allowed to purchase firearms or ammunition anywhere in the United States. If you are between 18 and 21, then you will be allowed to buy only rifles or shotguns and ammunition for them.

As of Dec. 16, you will be unable to purchase a firearm or ammunition if:

— you are under indictment or have been convicted of a crime punishable by imprisonment for more than one year.

— you are a fugitive from justice.

— you are an unlawful user of or addicted to marijuana or any other depressant, stimulant or narcotic drug.

Time drains away

Franc-ly speaking

WASHINGTON—President de Gaulle's crisis-induced gestures to refurbish his severely strained ties with the NATO allies should be viewed with utmost caution and restraint.

Before France is restored to full NATO membership, explicit and categorical commitments and guarantees must be required of de Gaulle on a number of key problems and issues. The imperious French leader must remove beyond any question of doubt the possibility of resuming his cold-war antics against the Western allies once his economic and fiscal difficulties have been eased.

That's the blunt opinion of Senator Vance Hartke, D-Ind., influential member of the Finance Committee who is considering offering legislation to implement this view in the new Congress that convenes January 3.

Pressing

As enumerated by Hartke, the pressing matters on which de Gaulle should be compelled to take unequivocal stands are as follows:

Britain's admittance to the Common Market — which de Gaulle has blocked with haughty persistence. Hartke thinks that if Britain were a member of the Common Market, the French crisis might have been averted, or at least considerably moderated.

Specific pledge to abandon widely reported plans to renounce the North Atlantic Treaty next year. After kicking all NATO military installations out of France, De Gaulle indicated intention to withdraw from the North Atlantic Treaty when renewal of his country's participation came up in 1969. Hartke wants De Gaulle to declare himself flatly and explicitly on this vital issue.

Payment by France of its fair proper share of the heavy cost of removing NATO headquarters and scores of military installations and re-establishing them in adjoining countries. Similarly, payment by France for the installations left in that country — ranging from airfields and pipelines to hospitals, schools, printing plants and numerous other costly properties with an estimated value of more than $2 billion. France is required to pay, but hasn't done so yet. The matter is still under negotiation.

Renewed official acknowledgment of the approximately $7 billion in World War I debts owed the U.S., and an agreement to be worked out on a definite schedule of repayment. Hartke has long demanded this be done, and considers it particularly timely that this be pressed now.

Markin time

When most folks have grown older,

They know this can be said:

A chip that's on the shoulder

Has come from off the head.

Luther Markin

— you have been judged by a court as a mental defective or have been committed to any mental institution.

(The Alcohol and Tobacco Tax Division Regional Commissioner may "pardon" a person in the first group if it "is in the public interest" and the individual's record and reputation are otherwise good enough to allow him to purchase firearms.)

Basically, however, if you are in none of the above groups and want to buy a firearm from a local gun dealer, you can walk right into the store and buy it — provided that you fulfill all of the requirements under any state or local laws pertaining to guns.

Proof for dealers

It is up to the licensed dealer to determine your qualifications. The dealer must demand proof of identity and record certain information about each person to whom he sells a gun or ammunition — name, address, date and place of birth, height, weight, race and a description of the item purchased with its serial number.

If you are not a resident of the state in which you are buying the gun or ammunition, you may still complete the purchase as long as you are a resident of a contiguous (bordering or adjoining) state. However, this may only be done if the laws of both states allow out of state residents to purchase firearms and if you fulfill all requirements of any local gun laws in your place of residence.

In order to buy a gun in a contiguous state — which may be done by mail or in person — you must first submit to the dealer a sworn statement that you are of the proper age and that you comply with all local laws effecting firearms in your place of residence.

Such a statement is also required if you want to purchase a gun by mail within your own state.

Along with this statement, you must give the name and address of the principal law enforcement officer (usually the Chief of Police) in the locality where you reside.

Before he can send or give you the gun, the dealer must first send a copy of this statement along with a description of the item to be purchased to your local law authority. The dealer must do this by registered or certified mail (receipt requested).

The dealer must then wait at least seven days after being notified that the law officer has received the information before completing the sale with you.

This sworn statement procedure is the only way you may purchase a firearm or ammunition through the mail under the new law — and it may only be used for purchases within your state or in a contiguous state.

You may, however, use the mail to send a gun to or receive a gun from any licensed dealer, manufacturer, importer or collector for the purpose of replacement, repair or customizing.

Licensed dealer

Under the new law, it is illegal for you to purchase a gun in a non-contiguous state unless you are a licensed dealer, manufacturer, importer or collector.

However, if you are hunting or participating in a shooting competition in a distant state and your gun is lost or stolen, you may buy a replacement. You must submit a sworn statement that your gun has been lost or stolen and identifying the law enforcement official in your place of residence. The dealer can sell you a new gun, but must immediately forward the statement and a description of the items purchased to the law officer.

In summary then, buying guns or ammunition by mail within your own state or in contiguous states will be allowed, but it will be far more complicated than it is now.

Other mail-order purchases will be unlawful. And it will also be illegal to buy a gun or ammunition in person while in a non-contiguous state unless your own firearm has been lost or stolen.

Generally speaking, if you are not a licensed dealer, manufacturer, importer or collector (licensee), you will not be allowed to transfer a firearm by any means to someone in another state, unless you are sending the gun to a licensee for replacement, repair or customizing.

Short stories swan song

AND OTHER STORIES. By John O'Hara.
Random House, $5.95.

An upsetting hint that this may be the last book of O'Hara short stories for some time to come appears in the witty, penetrating foreword to this book — but it is tempered by some good predictions.

O'Hara has decided that because "in seven years I'll be 70" he belongs in the ranks of the senior citizens and must conserve his writing powers. This is hard to believe, coming from a writer who turns out more published work each year than those half his age, and it's to be hoped O'Hara has had a change of both heart and mind since.

But if he does go through with it, his followers can at least look forward to "a long novel" and a "strange play" — both currently are in the typewriter.

"It is not a good thing, especially at my age," O'Hara writes, "to start forming bad habits, and the worst habit an author can form is that of leaving work unfinished."

Someone, he explains, "may get hold of your manuscript and finish it for you, and I don't want that to happen to anything of mine, but especially not to a novel or a play. It therefore behooves me to finish my play and my novel, to give them top priority, as we used to say in the 1940s."

Well, if this is to be O'Hara's short story swansong, then it's a fine one to go out with.

Of the 12 stories in this book, four of which appeared earlier in magazines, there isn't one that doesn't combine fine writing with absorbing plot.

Most take place in O'Hara's Gibbstown, Pa., and many are peopled with characters who have appeared before in the author's stories and novels.

It's much like meeting old friends again, but different because the characters are in new situations and usually reveal portions of themselves that haven't been shown before.

And O'Hara's uncannily clear ear for dialogue remains as sharp as ever. It may not be the way people really talk, but it certainly sounds like it, and that's what matters.

Novel of hermit sect

THE KEEPER. By Audrey Laski, Norton, $4.95.

A strange fundamentalist sect known as the Company of the Lord is at the center of Miss Laski's unusual tale.

It is a small band of religious fanatics that in 1950 had been transplanted from a rocky island in the Atlantic to a remote fishing village in West Wales. They are descendants of a shipload of Puritans of the 17th century.

The Company lives in a primitive type of communistic sharing, ruled by a hereditary dictator known as the Keeper of the Books, the "Records" and the "Rules and Dooms". The books prescribe some harsh rules prohibiting contact with the outside world.

Now the owner of the land wants to build a seaside resort at the site, and is faced with the problem of getting the Company out of the village. He sends his nephew Colin Gregory, a somewhat prissy intellectual, to scout the situation.

Colin narrowly misses being stoned to death upon his arrival, but he gradually wins the confidence of many of the Company, lives and works with them — meanwhile engaging in religious debates with the Keeper, who considers him an emissary of the Devil.

The basic theme of the narrative is the gradual process by which Colin comes to love these stubborn, illiterate people.

The climax is a rather bizarre and ironical shift of fate for the chief protagonist.

Escape from routine

BOTH SEXES SHOULD KNOW. By Bette Knight Scripps, Avon, 60 Cents.

For those who want to step on a magic carpet and escape from their workaday world, this pleasantly unpretentious paperback is just the thing. Bette Knight Scripps, who is married to E. W. Scripps of the newspaper family, combines motherhood, a newspaper column and an international social life. This book opens the door to her own glamorous world of travel.

This isn't a travel book, although the columns from which it is compiled bear datelines from St. Tropez to Lima. There are vivid descriptions of odd customs and strange places but the range is broader. Anecdotes of celebrity friends provide informal glimpses of royalty and film stars.

Her running commentary on fashion, done with wit and authority, is the high spot for women readers.

For a girl like this reviewer who must enjoy the jet set vicariously, "Both Sexes Should Know" is fast, fun reading.

Kresgeville postal service

Two men—six terms in office

(EDITOR'S NOTE — This is the third of 10 articles on post office histories in the West End of Monroe County, compiled by Raymond Andrews, a retired school teacher, who lives in Kresgeville.)

KRESGEVILLE — Elwood Getz is the present postmaster at Kresgeville and has held the position since Sept. 16, 1967.

He is also the 20th postmaster since the Kresgeville postoffice was founded on Jan. 5, 1846.

Joel Berlin was the first postmaster and served until April 21, 1848, when Henry Neff assumed the position. However, Berlin was destined to serve two more terms, being reelected on May 9, 1856, and again on Feb. 1, 1865.

Joseph Small served from April 22, 1862, until Berlin was selected for a third term.

James M. Berlin was also a three-time office holder, being named on Feb. 22, 1875, April 10, 1889, and Sept. 17, 1897.

Others who have held the office and dates of appointment are John G. Wueat, July 10, 1886; Aaron H. Christman, June 17, 1893; Cordelia K. Kresge, April 4, 1900; Minnie M. Beers, Jan. 23, 1901; Lewis K. Christman, Oct. 18, 1905; Robert D. Kunkle, Sept. 7, 1907; David C. Trach, May 8, 1913; Walter D. Kunkle, March 18, 1915; Mrs. Marnie I. Smale, April 1, 1948; LeRoy J. Keller, March 16, 1949, and Donald P. DePue, Sept. 13, 1963.

Walter D. Kunkle had the longest term of office, serving for 33 years, from 1915 to 1948.

Ruby mingled with newsmen at police headquarters

CHAPTER 10

11:00 P.M. John "Mugsy" O'Leary drove down Wisconsin Avenue in Washington, and turned into the parking lot at Harrison. O'Leary, a Kennedy idolator, was a member of the Secret Service because John F. Kennedy had endorsed his appointment. With him in the car were Kenneth O'Donnell, David Powers and Lawrence O'Brien, all members of the inner Kennedy group. These four had been sent to select a coffin. Their destination was the century-old funeral establishment of Joseph Gawler's Sons. A phone call from the White House had alerted the Gawler establishment to the visit.

Mr. Joseph Hagan, the operations manager who received them, said that he understood that embalming of the President would also be required. Powers nodded. Hagan assured him that Gawler's was prepared: an embalming team was waiting. Despite the late hour, everything would be accomplished to the satisfaction of the family. The visitors completed their unpleasant task in 20 minutes, by selecting a polished mahogany casket with silver handles from among dozens shown them.

The same hour, Lee Oswald stood abruptly, startling others in the interrogation room at Dallas police headquarters. He was tired of sitting, he said. The handcuffed hands hung at his thighs. He arched his back a few times and sat again.

In the outer office, Captain William Fritz of Homicide Division instructed Detectives Sims and Barritt to make out an arrest sheet on Lee Harvey Oswald in the murder of one John F. Kennedy. It was to be done at once; Fritz wanted to sign it before the prisoner left the office. The captain didn't have a piece of evidence which would lead him to believe that another person might be involved. For the sake of Dallas it would be a good thing to present the assassination as solved to the press of the world. The day could be closed on a note of triumph.

A man with the rumpled suit introduced himself to a young policeman in the hall. "I'm looking for Joe DeLong of KLLF," Jack Ruby said, holding a pencil and note pad in view. "Can you page him over the loudspeaker?" The policeman walked to a microphone and called. There was no response, and the officer told Ruby, "He isn't here." Ruby said: "I'll wait a minute." A reporter, passing, said he was glad that Police Chief Jesse Curry was going to allow the newsmen to question Oswald.

Ruby started down to the assembly room. He did not draw attention to himself. He knew his way around police headquarters. Sometimes a young rookie who did not know Jack Ruby might challenge him — might order him off the premises. The older men, who knew Ruby as a night club operator, might not want to bail him out of a situation like that. So he kept the pencil and pad in view and the nickel-plated .38 inside his trouser belt.

President Johnson watched the news on the TV set on the other side of the bedroom with heavy-lidded eyes, half listening, half nodding to suggestions made by his three young assistants, Jack Valenti, Cliff Carter, and Bill Moyers. He held up both hands for quiet. . . . and now," a commentator said, "we return you to Washington." The vision of faces faded, and Andrews Air Force Base came on screen. A plane was taxiing into the patch of light. An announcer said: "... just arriving from Honolulu. This is the plane which carried Secretary of State Dean Rusk and other members of the Cabinet, who were on their way to Tokyo. The tragic news reached them out over the Pacific, and Mr. Rusk ordered the plane to return to Washington."

Secretary of State Dean Rusk, Lunchers win

MILAN, Italy (AP) — Milanese who like to linger longer over lunch have won a skirmish with City Hall. They got the afternoon parking ban in the center of the city changed from 1:30 to 4 to 2:30 to 4 to give them an extra hour at "business lunches."

Rodents' nemesis

NEW DELHI (AP) — The mongoose, classic conqueror of the cobra, is being turned against less glamorous prey at the Delhi public library. A task force of 12 mongooses, to deal with rodents.

Lee Harvey Oswald clenches fingers into fists demonstrably as he raises his manacled wrists in exhibition for photographers at Dallas police headquarters Nov. 22, 1963.

moving to the microphones of newscasters on the field, had no intention of making a mistake. Rusk glanced at a curled sheet of paper in his hand and said: "We have fully shared the deep sense of shock at the grievous loss the nation has suffered. Those of us who have had the honor of serving President Kennedy value the gallantry and wisdom he brought to the grave, awesome, and lonely office of the presidency." Mr. Rusk looked up into the lights. "President Johnson needs and deserves our fullest support," he said.

The room where Lee Harvey Oswald was to be presented to the news media had become a bedlam. Deputy Chief Charles Bachelor stood on the low rostrum in front of the room and shouted for order. He could not be heard. Jack Ruby climbed on a small table and crouched with his back to the wall. He was only 11 feet from the rostrum.

On the third floor, Captain Fritz said he wanted all of his men down in that room, and they dropped their assignments to hurry there. Chief Curry was worried. He saw Detectives Sims and Boyd flanking Oswald, and the chief said: "Don't let anybody get near him or touch him. If anyone tries to, I want you fellows to get him out of there immediately."

In the front of the assembly room Dallas County District Attorney Henry Wade sat on a desk, dangling his legs. He was a man normally impervious to danger, but he had an uneasy feeling now.

A dozen detectives forced their way into the front of the big room with Lee Harvey Oswald. Wade waved the reporters back from the rostrum. He saw one lined face above the crowd. A strange one — Ruby's — in this place and wondered about it. Will Fritz hoped that Curry would put Oswald up on the stage. He would be out of arm's reach of the press, and besides he could be hurriedly yanked offstage into the prison admitting office. Curry told the police to put Oswald down front. The wall of protection around the prisoner kept the reporters three feet away.

A roar of sound enveloped the room as the newsmen, glimpsed the man police brought to the lectern. There were mingled calls, "Down in front! Down in front! Let's get a look at him. Is this the guy, chief? Did he do it? We can't hear anything. Hey, why did you shoot Kennedy?"

The prisoner had not uttered a word, but the nightclub owner interpreted Oswald's expression as being "proud of what he had done." Jack Ruby decided the suspect was smirking.

Oswald acknowledged the greeting of the mob by raising both manacled hands over his head. Jack Ruby saw it as a clenched-fist communist salute.

"I was questioned . . . " Oswald began. Yells arose, "Louder! Louder!" Police men around the prisoner tensed. They looked for a nod from some higher-up to take the prisoner out of the room. "Well, I was questioned," the prisoner said louder, and the crowd began to subside. Those who continued to yell were told to "Shut up!"

Oswald could read the hostile expressions. They were not friendly to his cause. "I protested at the time that I was not allowed legal representation during that very short and sweet hearing." There was no patience with his protests or his sarcasm. "Did you do it?" some yelled and others took up the cry. "Did you shoot the President?"

"I really don't know what the situation is about," Oswald responded calmly. "Nobody has told me anything except that I am accused of . . . " The voice faltered. " . . . of murdering a policeman. I know nothing more than that. I do request someone to come forward to give me legal assistance."

"Did you kill the President?"

was repeated. Oswald shook his head slowly. "No," he said. "I have not been charged with that. In fact, nobody has said that to me yet." It was true he had been brought in on the charge of shooting Policeman J. D. Tippit, a motor-patrolman who spotted Oswald from a radio description. He was in a position to appear aggrieved. "The first thing I heard about that," he said, almost plaintively, "was when the newspaper reporters in the hall asked me that question."

Other questions arose: "What happened to your eye?" "When were you in Russia?" "Mr. Oswald, how did you hurt your eye?" The press in the rear began to shout to the press in front to repeat the questions and answers. Oswald said: "A policeman hit me." Chief Curry nodded to a detective. Oswald was grasped by the arm. The press conference was over. The cordon was tight around him, and the police began to propel the suspect toward the door. A radio commentator held a microphone to his lips and said: "That was Oswald, Lee Oswald, who was charged with the murder of the President of the United States, although he said he did not know it . . . "

The reporters then turned their attention to Henry Wade. The district attorney was used to the give-and-take of reporters and fielded the questions easily. When they were finished Wade turned to leave with Justice of the Peace David Johnston. Someone stuck a hand between them and both men stared at Jack Ruby. "Hi, Henry!" he said. "Don't you know me? I'm Jack Ruby. I run the Vegas Club. Henry, I want you to know that I was the one who corrected you," he said, referring to a point in the questioning when he had called out to Wade about the right name of Oswald's Free Play for Cuba movement. Ruby kept pumping the hand of the district attorney. Wade introduced David Johnston. The nightclub owner shook hands and passed a card. It featured a line cut of a nude girl in black stockings holding a champagne glass.

Just Between Us—

By Bobby Westbrook

I'm not in favor of furnishing toddlers with brass knuckles and switchblade knives, but it does seem to me that people have gone a bit overboard in the matter of toy censorship, according to some programs I heard lately.

Of course all war toys are out including the tanks, machine guns, G. I. Joes, that made life a misery for adults a few Christmases back, but so are tin soldiers, cowboys and Indians and toy guns (They glorify violence, the man said.)

Of course, we had a pretty noisy battle going over the holidays with the children using the cardboard tubes from Christmas wrapping paper as guns and "Bang, Bang, You're dead!" isn't apt to pass from childhood's vocabulary as long as Westerns and battle scenes from Vietnam are standard television fare.

Miniature metal cars are all-right, he admitted, but not for toddlers who might fall on them, break the wheels and get the axles in their eye—which seems to be carrying safety measures a little far since they can also throw blocks at each other, hit each other over the head with the fireplace tongs, and pound the daylight out of each other with the wooden mallet from the pounding board.

Stuffed animals are all right, too, if they're washable (germs, you know) and don't have the kind of eyes that come off and can be swallowed. So are dolls, if they're properly sexed and integrated. (What, no accompanying book on sex education?)

But after listening to a number of such programs you begin to get the idea that the only safe place for a child is locked in a padded cell surrounded by stuffed animals, educational puzzles, and Flash cards. Don't blame me if they choke themselves on the cord from their See and Say educational toy.

My contention is that it isn't the toys that make children violent, but their response to the violence in adults as shown, either physically, in snatching them baldheaded or, mentally, by "reasoning" with them through clenched teeth.

Ross-Janson wedding is held in Maryland

COLLEGE PARK, MD. Announcement is made of the marriage of Miss Constance Marie Janson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stan Janson of Cheverly, Md. to R. LeRoy Ross of McLean, Va. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Ross of Paradise Valley, Cresco.

They were married in the chapel of the University of Maryland, College Park, Md. with Rev. Ted Casper officiating at the double ring candlelight ceremony.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a dress of white silk organza with fitted bodice and a bell-shaped skirt with a long train. The scoop neckline and long sleeves were of scalloped lace. Her veil of silk illusion fell from an open crown cap and she carried a bouquet of orchids surrounded by split carnations with sprigs of ivy.

Miss Marilyn Smith of Cheverly, Md. was maid of honor. She wore a floor-length gown of pink tulle with a panel of pink organza in both front and back and a matching headpiece. She carried a colonial bouquet of happiness roses and strawberry carnations.

The bridesmaids were Mrs. Bonnie Burell of Hyattsville, Md.; Miss Nancy Cole of Cheverly, Md.; Miss Marsha Manpin of Landover, Md.; and Mrs. Sandra Millard of Bladensburg, Md.

They wore similar gowns and carried colonial bouquets. Peggy Ross, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jefferson Ross of Paradise Valley, niece of the bridegroom, was flower girl. She wore a floor length gown of pink silk and carried a white lace basket of strawberry carnations.

David B. Ross of Stroudsburg was his brother's best man.

Ushers were Jerry Jansen of Greenbelt, Md., brother of the bride; Jefferson Ross of Paradise Valley, and Rodney Ross of Waquoit, Mass., Cape Cod, brothers of the bridegroom; Bert Bochoven of Dayton Beach Fla., high school classmate of the bridegroom and Wayne Beckwith of Webster, N.J., fraternity brother of the bridegroom.

The bride's mother wore a sheath dress of pink silk crepe trimmed in lace with matching lace coat and accessories. She wore a white orchid corsage.

The bridegroom's mother wore a dress and coat ensemble of aqua silk with matching accessories and a white glamoire corsage.

A reception was held at Holiday Inn, College Park, for 150 guests. The dessert table held a four-tiered wedding cake. A rehearsal dinner, given by the bridegroom's parents, was held on the eve of the wedding at Holiday Inn.

After a honeymoon in Williamsburg, Va., the newlyweds are at home at 1160 South Thomas, Arlington, Va.

The bride is a graduate of Blandburg High School, Md., and attended the University of Maryland. She is employed at Group Hospitalization Inc., Washington, D.C.

Mr. Ross attended Barrett High School and graduated from Seabreeze High School, Daytona Beach, Fla. He has completed a course in horticulture at Alfred State College, Alfred, N.Y. and is employed as a supervisor horticulturist with National Park Service, Washington, D.C.

The bride was honored at two bridal showers, one given by her bridesmaids and one given by Mrs. David Hunter at Hunters Farm, Henryville. Guests attended the wedding including those from Virginia, Georgia, Florida, South Carolina, New Jersey, New York, Pennsylvania and the District of Columbia.

Holiday Package theme of Women's Club meet

STROUDSBURG — A costumed musical character program, "Holiday Package" will be featured at the meeting of the Women's Club of the Stroudsburgs on Monday, Dec. 9 at 1:30 at the Stroud Community House.

The entertainment will feature Phyllis Finston who began her musical studies at the Henry Street Music School, New York City. She was selected by the eminent conductor Alfred Wallenstein to sing in Aaron Copeland's opera "The Second Hurricane" and also sang with the All-City Chorus of New York.

After two years at the American Theatre Wing, she got the role of the zany countess in "Roberta", and has specialized in musical character roles ever since. She has appeared in leading roles in "Oklahoma", "Kiss Me Kate", "Call Me Madam", "The Boy Friend" and "Song of Norway".

Miss Finston was adult drama director of the Y in Passaic, N.J., and has written and directed children's programs for many schools.

She has appeared at leading hotels and country clubs such as the Americana Hotel, N.Y.C.,

Phyllis Finston

The Ritz-Carlton Hotel, Atlantic City and the East Norwich Country Club.

Dr. Madelon Powers will lead the pledge of allegiance and club collect and Mrs. Clifford F. Heller will give the invocation.

Co-chairmen of the hostess committee which will serve dessert at 1:30 preceding the program are Mrs. F. J. Trumbauer, Mrs. William C. Mitchell and Mrs. Carl Wagner.

Beakleyville to welcome new pastor

EAST STROUDSBURG — A dinner reception welcoming the new minister of the Beakleyville Baptist Church will be held on Wednesday, Dec. 11, at the church.

Rev. Edwin Jack, formerly of Grove City, will be living here with his wife and seven children at 495 North Courtland St., East Stroudsburg.

A covered dish supper at 6:30 will begin the reception.

Miss Cynthia Sanders

Lt. G. G. Kahl engaged to Texas girl

EL PASO, TEXAS — Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Sanders, Jr., of El Paso, Texas have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Cynthia Sanders to 2nd Lt. George G. Kahl III, son of Lt. Col. (Ret.) and Mrs. George G. Kahl of Tobyhanna.

Miss Sanders is attending Texas Technological College in Lubbock, Texas where, upon graduation in January 1969, she will receive a Bachelor of Science Degree in Child Development.

Lt. Kahl is a graduate of Stroudsburg High School. He received a Bachelor of Science Degree in Special Education in 1966 from the East Stroudsburg State College. He was commissioned a 2nd Lt. in the United States Air Force in 1967 upon completion of Officer Training School at Lackland Air Force Base, Texas. He is presently attending the Air Training Command Flying Program at Reese Air Force Base, Texas, where upon graduation in January 1969, he will be awarded silver pilot wings.

An early Spring wedding is planned.

Hard sell on toys

It all depends on your point of view.
If you're an advertising man selling toys your aim is to plant a desire in the minds of children.

If you're a mother, your aim is to plant a fist in the mouth of advertising men who plant a desire in the minds of children.

No matter how you slice it, television's pitch for Christmas toys is driving mothers to the vanilla bottle for solace.

No sooner was the frost on the pumpkin and the fodder in the shock (the was in shock then, wait till he gets the Christmas charge) than television began to extol the thrill of owning your own war, complete with 150 aircraft, 30 tanks, 15 battleships, full artillery complement, portable landing strip and 497 fighting men each with three changes of Jockey shorts. (If purchased this week, handy carrying case would be included.)

You have to hit an average child with the commercial about five times before his need actually becomes critical.

The first stage is the "Oh, Mother, I saw a Bake Crummy oven on television today."

Next, it's the "Mother, come look at the Bake Crummy oven on television."

This is followed by the "Buy me a Bake Crummy oven for Christmas. It only costs $34.95."

Next, it's the "I don't want to go on living without a Bake Crummy oven."

Finally the kid gets downright spooky about it. The eyes become narrow slits, the nostrils quiver in and out and she whispers, "If you still have relatives in Germany you want to see alive, I'd suggest you consider the Bake Crummy oven."

Worn down by pressure, Mother finally succumbs. After all, perhaps her child is right. She could bake cakes for White House weddings, bread everyday for the family, cookies and candies for her playmates and one day take her place in the kitchens of Betty Crocker.

Christmas morning, "Bake Crummy" is under the tree, complete with 32 batteries. Where is the pungent aroma of fruitcake? The cheese souffle? The strudel that a three-year-old child could make just by washing her hands?

"Why aren't you using your Bake Crummy?" asks Mother.

"I am using it," she says. "The lid of the box is just great. It makes the most wonderful Fort..."

Who could blame a mother for inviting Mr. Advertising Executive for tea and inquiring, "How do you want your lumps? In your mouth? Or in your cup of hemlock?"

'Bugged' toys give slant on children

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — A toy gun that rattles on its user is helping Georgia State College scientists find out what makes children tick.

The gun is part of a collection of bugged playthings which tell all to a computer in an experiment devised by the psychology department.

Main idea is to explore the thinking of children between the ages of 7 and 12 who have a hard time learning in school.

A child is taken to a doorway leading into two rooms which look like penny arcades containing electrically operated toys.

In one room there is play equipment with aggressive uses, such as guns and boxing gloves. The other room has constructive playthings.

Usually, said Dr. Luciano L'Abate, head of the play therapy experiment, the child chooses the aggressive room, at least on his first visit. Later he may turn to the constructive toys.

He added: "The choice of the aggressive playroom is a general pattern for normal children as well as those with learning problems, who don't socialize well with their parents, teachers and peers."

When the children play with the toys, sensors register on the computer, which is hooked up to various laboratories in the psychology department. The computer records the children's tensions and reactions to stimuli and prints the information on cards.

This makes it possible to run lengthy controlled experiments under a variety of conditions, with data available immediately for analysis.

In evaluating behavior, the college psychologists combine the tell-tale computer cards with the results of conversations between the children and trained therapists.

Hindi falls off

NEW DELHI (AP) — Pure Hindi, scheduled to become India's official language out of 14 now recognized, has a diminishing number of people who claim it as their native tongue. In 1951, 30 per cent of all Indians told census takers they used Hindi. The most recent census put the number at 27.5 per cent. The reason for the fall-off was said to be a tendency to record Hindi dialects as separate languages.

Ann Landers

Genetic gamble

Dear Ann Landers: I can't resist the temptation to comment on the problem Sid was having with his bride-to-be Doris. He became upset when he learned Doris had had her nose remodeled and had kept it from him. Sid expressed his anxiety to Doris' father over lunch — saying he was concerned about what their unborn children might look like.

Your reply, "Better the kids should inherit Doris' old nose than Sid's brains," reminded me of this true story.

When I was young I remember my father asking a very intelligent but homely uncle why he was going to marry a certain young lady who was extremely beautiful, but unbalanced. In fact, everyone who knew the girl said she was crazy. My uncle replied, "I want children who will be beautiful like their mother and intelligent like me."

My uncle and his wife had five children. Every one of those kids is homely like their father and crazy like their mother.

PAUL L.

Dear Paul: No one can predict what the genes and chromosomes will produce. For people who wish to gamble, recommend the horse races.

Dear Ann Landers: A couple years ago you printed a letter from a teenager who asked you to help bridge the generation gap in her house. She said her parents kept harping on how things were when they were teen-agers and this only made matters worse. After all, it's a different world today and everything has changed, including the teen-agers.

Your answer was the best thing I had ever read on the subject. I cut it out and pinned it to the bulletin board in the kitchen. It helped a lot in our house.

The clipping is getting ragged and hard to read. Will you please reprint your answer? I would love to have a fresh copy to pin up. Thank you.

GLAD THERE'S AN ANN LANDERS

Dear Glad: Happy to oblige. Here it is:

Attention Parents or "Fellow Antiques": The one phrase that kids don't want to hear is, "When I was your age." In the first place, they don't believe you ever were. In the second place, they couldn't care less "how it was." They are concerned with how it is. Comparisons are not only boring, they are meaningless. Your children are growing up in a different world than the one you and I knew. They have different problems, different pressures — and different parents. Teen-agers today have it easier in some ways, but their lives are much more complicated and frustrating in other ways. One thing is certain — I'm glad I am not in high school today. I'm not at all sure I could make it.

Confidential to Need Him: You need him like Custer needed more Indians. Stop telling the loafer to get out of your life. He won't do it. Why should he? He's having a ball, and all for free. Get out of his.

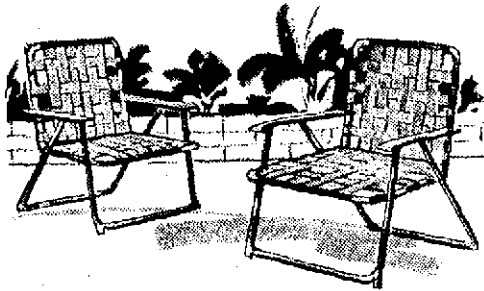

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Don't let him start

PUBLIC DISPLAY: (Q.) I can't date yet. My boy friend is just allowed to visit me at my house and take me for walks. He's 14 and I'm 13.

If we go for a walk, all he wants to do is make out — in public! This makes me feel awful, but if I say no to him he gets mad. I don't want to lose him. Please help me.

J.M.B. of Austin, Texas

(A.) Making out in public is no good at any age.

If you really like the boy and want to continue to be his girl friend but on different terms, ask him in a nice way to be less friendly in public. Ask him this before — not after — he starts something on one of your walks. A boy is not easy to reason with after he has started something.

WHISPERS: (Q.) My girl friend and I like the same boy. Every time I see her she's whispering to somebody about him. When I come closer they look up and move off.

Some of the girls she whispers to are my friends. I don't

New York's Voice of Broadway

NEW YORK — Max Baer Jr. will head a health club syndicate, barbell gyms in big cities. . . . Judith Crist's Look mag piece on Harold Pinter's "Birthday Party" will boast a posh photographer — Lord Snowden. . . . Jack Carter's estranged frau Paula Stewart's suffering from a head bob by a hippie hotrod. . . . Venezuelan money is flowing into Yankee dollars from Castro-frightened businessmen there. . . . The Broadway sector is this wild: the captain of the theatrical area precinct had two choice duets for "Funny Girl" and they were stolen. . . . and scalded in the lobby before the heister could be hauled in. . . . Wyatt Cooper (Gloria Vanderbilt's husband) and Ronald Reagan's son Mike are behind a men's mod-clothing exhibition by nine far-out international designers. . . . Oh, those wild stage actresses: Uta Hagen and gifted young Gwyda Donhowe are partners in seeds of vegetable seeds they'll plant between their adjoining properties in The Hamptons. . . . You can't rent a room on the American Hotel's 50th floor — it's the Think Tank where the Tisch Bros. computers click out bills, inventories, etc. . . . The Samantha Eggar-Tom Stern marriage is sternly scrambled again. . . . UN scribes think U Thant will try to place the Suez Canal under UN trusteeship. . . . Lawrence Welk is booked into Harrah's in Tahoe for next June and the contract calls for more than 100 in his troupe — a record. . . . Pegen Fitzgerald and other animalphiles will be happy, no doubt, to learn that all 670 horses in "The Charge of the Light Brigade" movie had their ears packed with cotton during the dynamite-noisy scenes of simulated cannon fire.

Publishers of the Robert H. Rimmer novel "Proposition 31" were asked what the "proposition" is and replied: "Indecent." . . . Broadway businessmen such as Vincent Sardi Jr., Lou Walters of the Latin Quarter, Irving Cheskin of the League of N.Y. Theatres, etc., are deeply concerned about the way Broadway is sinking into grubbier ways. . . . Vincent Sardi Jr. was mugged by an addict who, at 20, had eight arrests and remained at large.

During the 23 years Ozzie & Harriet were on radio and television no one ever established how Ozzie made his obviously comfortable living; when Ozzie stars Dec. 29 without Harriet on "Mothers In Law," he'll play a "former bandleader in the episode titled, "Didn't You Use To Be Ozzie Snick?" . . . Ozzie was a smoothy professional television host when he filled in for Joey Bishop. . . . Carlos Pavez, a waiter at Christo's, was a bullfighter in his native Argentina and was all set to go back to his native Mendoza for the bullring festival; his wife was dead set against it and she won the argument with her ultimate play: she announced she was expecting another bambino. . . . Billy De Wolfe and Larry Storch, who'll co-star in the cruise-ship comedy series "The Queen and I" — Billy's pals know that's funny already — for Bing Crosby Productions, served together in the Navy a couple of wars ago. . . . Maybe Bdw's finest set designer, Jo Mielziner, is going off Bdw. for the first time fashioning the "Possibilities" sets. . . . Otto Brönniger, a legendary tough director, and Jackie Gleason, a legendary director-registrar, got along superbly on Otto's "Skidoo" film comedy. . . . Donald Pleasance (fabulously fine in "The Man in the Glass Booth" on Broadway) is even more proud of his five-year-old daughter Polli's acting debut in the Pixie Judy Troupe's "Littlest Clown" kiddie-production at Judson Hall. . . . Nathan Holodgery on Times Square (on the site of Toffenetti's at 43rd St.) will be lots tonier than the Coney Island original.

Having it is how a car qualifies for Chevrolet's Sports Shop. Which limits membership to the 1969 Corvette, Z/28, and the SS versions of Impala, Chevelle, Camaro, Nova.

But that's the only limit.

What our Sports Shop cars have in common is very uncommon elsewhere. Fat, grabby tires on wide wheels. Power disc brakes. SS V8's from 300 hp.

And the individual idea of letting you order from a car enthusiast's list of performance and dress-up features.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

By B. Jay Becker

BIDDING QUIZ

You are South, both sides vulnerable, and have this hand:

♠ 7 ♠ A ♠ Q ♠ K ♠ 10 ♠ A ♠ J ♠ 10 ♠ 9

1. You bid One Club, West One Spade, North One No-trump, and East passes. What would you bid now?

2. You bid One Club, West One Spade, North Two Diamonds, and East passes. What would you bid now?

3. You bid One Club, West passes, North Two No-trump, and East passes. What would you bid now?

4. You bid One Club, North One Diamond, you One Heart, North Two Hearts, East-West pass throughout. What would you bid now?

1. Two clubs. North probably has 8 or 9 points including a spade stopper for his notrump bid. Game is therefore unlikely, and two clubs is apt to be a safer contract than one no-trump.

Of course, North may have a 10-point hand including two spade stoppers, but until he identifies such a holding, you cannot assume it.

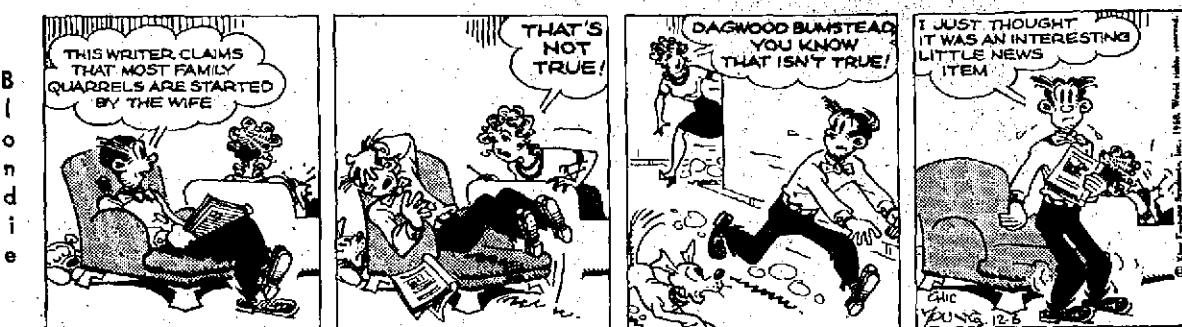

2. Two hearts. This is not a reverse, since two hearts is the cheapest bid you can make. However, you should now view this hand as much more promising for game purposes than the preceding one. Partner's diamond bid raises the value of your hand several points, and in this sequence he very probably has more than 10 points. But for the moment, all you do is mark time with two hearts, planning to show your diamond support later.

3. Three hearts. You bid three hearts mainly to warn partner against notrump. North is unlikely to have four hearts, since he failed to respond one heart, although he may have bypassed the suit for tactical reasons. Three hearts should not be treated by North as a reverse bid showing extra strength, since it is better used as a clarifying bid to pinpoint distribution.

4. Three diamonds. There are three possible bids — three diamonds, three hearts and four hearts — and they all make sense. You probably won't make four hearts if partner has the wrong type of hand, and that is the chief objection to an immediate leap to game.

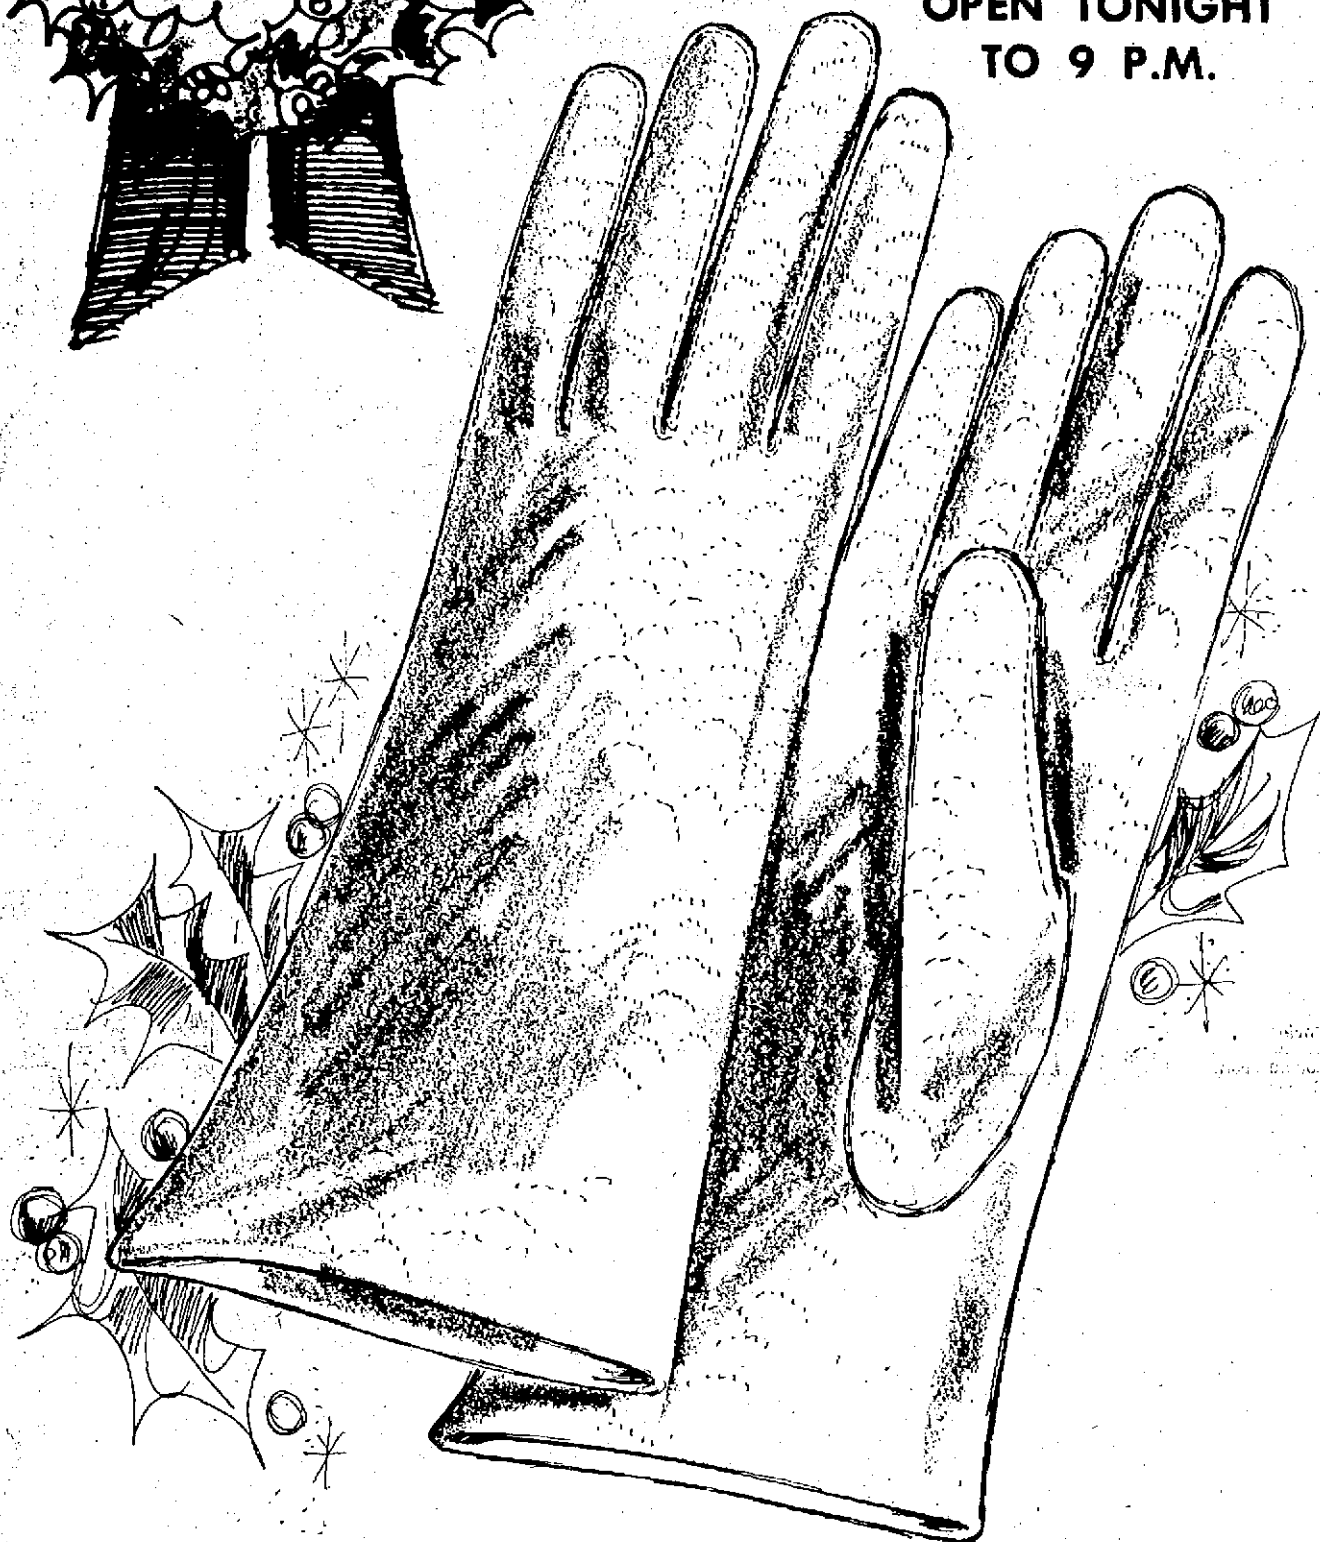

A three heart bid would invite partner to go on to four, but would merely announce extra values without delineating what they are. A three diamond bid has the added virtue of not only identifying extra values but also describing the three-suited nature of your hand.

Hints for moving Christmas mail—mail early, use zip code, classify

EAST STROUDSBURG — Stewart E. Marsh, East Stroudsburg Postmaster, is reminding the public with the following information to assist all post offices in the county in moving mail in the quickest possible time during the 1968 Christmas mail rush.

Mail early in the day and advance dispatch by hours and delivery by days.

Use Zip Code. All mail is worked by Zip Code and is mandatory on parcel post to determine the zone for parcel post rates. Use the Zip Code directories available in the lobbies of any post office.

Write legible, using complete mailing address, return address and zip code.

Seal all envelopes. The postage on Christmas cards is six cents. First class mail is six cents per ounce, which covers the normal cards. This mail is forwarded to a new address or returned to the sender if undeliverable.

Third class mail is six cents for two ounces and must be

Recorder gives $8,000 to county

STROUDSBURG — Monroe County Register and Recorder Carl Yost Thursday turned over to the Monroe County Commissioners two checks totaling $14,000.

A check for $6,000 was the sum required of Yost to be turned over to the county by law. The second check for $8,000 was donated to the general county fund by Yost. The money was legally his.

Yost reported to the commissioners that in June of this year, he turned over $9,000 to the county general fund, $4,000 of which was required, while the remaining $5,000 was also donated from the money which he is legally entitled to.

Yost estimated that the required and donated money that he will turn over to the county by the end of the year would total approximately $30,000.

Yost also reported that in Monroe County this year, more than $21,000,000 worth of taxable property has changed hands as of Dec. 4.

The county commissioners authorized the advertising of bids for the aerial survey of the county on the recommendation of the Tax Study Committee.

The survey had originally been discussed by the commissioners on Aug. 22. At that time it was decided to wait until the fall of the year to undertake the project because the absence of foliage would permit a more useful study.

The commissioners granted approval for District Attorney Philip H. Williams to purchase additional office furniture for his offices in the courthouse. The purchases are not to exceed $600.

In other business, an allotment of $1,000 was approved at the request of the Monroe County Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals.

Foods to be distributed

STROUDSBURG — Surplus food will be distributed at the regular distribution center, 804 Main St. (rear) on Tuesday and Wednesday from 10 a.m. to noon and from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m.

Any eligible family that did not re-certify in November may do so this month. This is the next to the final distribution of food to needy families in the county.

It is anticipated that Monroe County will go on the Food Stamp Plan on Feb. 1.

Tomato juice and corn syrup are two new items which will head the list of 17 foods available.

Solicitor Elmer D. Christine was instructed to look into the legal aspects of the Commissioners' office becoming members of the Mount Pocono Airport Authority.

Chairman Elwood Hintze informed his fellow commissioners that the authority would soon draft a letter asking the office of the commissioners to become members.

Hintze reported that the commissioners annually donate $15,000 to the authority which is the largest of any contributions made to the organization.

It was further reported by the commissioners that a 16-foot tail, blue spruce Christmas tree had been donated to the courthouse by Orin Reish, Stroudsburg R.D. 5.

It was also announced that the Commissioners would continue their search for a chief clerk. Commissioner Mrs. Nancy B. Shukaitis said that applicants would be interviewed for the job today.

Mrs. Bonser's services held

STROUDSBURG — Funeral services for Mrs. Martha J. Bonser, 84, of 29 N. Tenth St., Stroudsburg, were Thursday in the Daniel G. Warner Funeral Home, with The Rev. David G. High officiating.

Burial was in Laurelwood Cemetery.

Pallbearers were Owen Mosteller Jr., William Bonser Jr., Thomas Bonser, Adam Bonser, Edward Bonser and Charles Lasher.

Three students confess to East Stroudsburg bomb call

By JIM RILEY
Pocono Record Editor

EAST STROUDSBURG — The mystery of a telephone call containing threats of bombs in East Stroudsburg and Stroudsburg schools was at least reduced Thursday morning.

In fact, the case was one-third solved.

Mrs. Pauline H. Peterson, superintendent of East Stroudsburg Schools, and Donald G. Quick, chief of East Stroudsburg Police, in a joint statement revealed that three boys had admitted to placing a call on Wednesday, during which it was reported that a bomb had been placed in the school and that it was set to go off between 1 p.m. and 3 p.m.

The call forced Mrs. Peterson to excuse classes at 12:30 p.m., due to the possible dangers existing.

All three boys are students at East Stroudsburg High. One is 17 and a junior. Two are age 16 and sophomores. Because of their ages, names were withheld by authorities.

The initial break in the case came at 8:40 p.m. Wednesday, when East Stroudsburg policeman Charles McDonald received a telephone call at headquarters, revealing the name of one of the three boys. "There was no conversation, just the name," Quick said.

Mrs. Peterson and members of the faculty brought the named boy into the office Thursday morning and he quickly involved his two companions in the prank.

Call from inside school

According to Mrs. Peterson, the three boys planned the venture during a first period study hall Wednesday and then made the call to the office from a pay telephone located in the hallway between the first and second classes.

"The entire thing started as a prank, then a dare and suddenly it was a reality," Mrs. Peterson explained.

The East Stroudsburg superintendent said that all three of the youths emphatically denied having any part in the previous bomb scare at East Stroudsburg High on Oct. 17. They also strongly denied any connection with similar threats at East Stroudsburg State College and Stroudsburg High on Wednesday or any other time.

Quick and Mrs. Peterson both said they are convinced that the incidents are separate.

"Six calls were received through the college switchboard on bomb scares. The seventh was received at a pay phone outside the College Hill Shop at 12:40 p.m. Wednesday and was answered by Jerry Heller, a street crossing guard. Someone had to know that number and know that Heller would be close enough to the booth to hear the phone ring," Quick said.

Still in class

"As far as the Stroudsburg threat is concerned, the three boys were still in class when that telephone call was first received. They were too scared by this time to make anymore calls," Mrs. Peterson related.

Mrs. Peterson also said that one of the boys became concerned with the venture when he noted the change in schedule and the advancement in the East Stroudsburg lunch period. "I almost came to you and admitted my part in the whole thing, but I lost my nerve," one of the youths was quoted as saying.

Mrs. Peterson reported that the three boys have had attendance troubles previously, had been caught smoking and had been a part of a prankish-type troubles.

"The entire student body and faculty resented the threat and the fact that classes were dismissed at 12:30 p.m. Wednesday. But, we had to close school because of the possible dangers and the heavy rain. The grade schools were dismissed at the same time because of the school bus problem," Mrs. Peterson explained.

"We just can't tolerate this type of action. It is too costly to the school district and forces a hardship on both the faculty and student body. Juvenile delinquency of this type must be nipped in the bud," Mrs. Peterson stated.

The East Stroudsburg superintendent said the case was brought to an end by speedy work and cooperation of borough and state police. "Other people and organizations also aided solving the case, but I can't name them at this time," Mrs. Peterson said.

All three boys have been released in the custody of their parents, pending a decision by juvenile court.

Police in both Stroudsburg and East Stroudsburg, with the cooperation of state police, are continuing their investigation into the other bomb threats.

Mrs. Jago to face grand jury action

BANGOR — A 67-year-old woman charged with the embezzlement of $301,000 from the Bangor Cooperative Savings and Loan Assn. will face grand jury action next month.

The woman, Mrs. Mildred Jago of 318 Market St., was charged with embezzlement during an arraignment Wednesday morning before Easton Alderman Pat J. Margaulia.

Mrs. Jago told The Pocono Record Thursday that she returned to Alderman Margaulia's office later Wednesday afternoon and waived preliminary examination.

When asked what attorney she retained to represent her, Mrs. Jago said, "Oh, I don't have one."

Northampton County District Attorney Charles Spaziani said Thursday afternoon that the case automatically will be brought before the January Northampton County Grand Jury since Mrs. Jago waived preliminary examination.

Alderman Margaulia said the case will probably come before the February term of the Northampton County Court.

Spaziani also confirmed Thursday that Mrs. Jago, secretary of the Bangor Cooperative Savings and Loan Assn. since about 1940, had owed approximately $100,000 in federal income tax which she has repaid.

The Internal Revenue Service in Allentown said it was not certain whether she owed tax monies and if she did would not divulge the information. The federal government had not filed any liens against her, however, according to a check with the Northampton County Prothonotary.

The Grand Jury action next month will be the first official "police action" since Mrs. Jago's arraignment.

The original charges against her were made by Francis E.

Varilla, an examiner with the State Department of Banking. Varilla was also appointed deputy receiver for the Bangor Co-op by G. Allen Patterson, secretary of banking.

Varilla indicated Thursday that his first day in charge of the Bangor Co-op was a busy one.

"Many people came in just for information," Varilla said. "Specifically to ask what's going to happen to their money and to the association."

Varilla also said that customers did not demand any withdrawals, but added newspaper accounts of the embezzlement made it clear that the banking department would not permit any withdrawals.

The only actual real change in the operations of the cooperative, however, is that the installment savings account is discontinued.

Varilla said this is the type of savings account whereby persons deposit $5 or $10 per week. The account has been cancelled since it would disrupt an examination of the association books.

Varilla said examiners currently have to verify all of the association's accounts and if additional payments are brought in for the installment savings account, the procedure would be disrupted.

Banking department auditors discovered the shortage in funds some 10 days ago. An investigation began and Mrs. Jago resigned.

"Wilber T. Bachman of Allentown had previously audited the firm's books for the association. Varilla said that Bachman's audit reports did not indicate there was a shortage."

The association books have been audited three times each year. Association auditors checked the books twice and the state auditors once.

E. S. police want more money while council tries to find it

By BOB GROSS
Pocono Record Reporter

EAST STROUDSBURG — It isn't often that a man gets a $500 raise and still isn't fully content. However that is just the feeling that is pervading the headquarters of the East Stroudsburg Police Department.

To the last man, from the chief to the newest patrolman, the police force is grateful for the new salary boosts recently approved by the borough council.

However, again to the last man, they feel that their salaries are still not up to the level which would enable them, as they put it, to take home a living wage.

Across the river in Stroudsburg, the police department is paid on a higher scale.

In the 1969 budget, the borough council provided each policeman with at least a $500 raise and in some cases at least $700 raises. The only exception was Chief Donald Quick who received a $400 raise.

Every man seems to feel that the minimum salary for a patrolman should be at least $6,000. This they say is their conception of what a living wage really is.

Not only do the police feel that their minimum salary should be $6,000, but they also feel that this was promised to them by certain council members, who, it appears, have failed to go to bat for the police.

Police say that these certain councilmen promised to push for a minimum salary of $6,000 when the budget was being prepared for 1969. The promises were made at a meeting held in July of this year in police headquarters. Not all council members were present.

None at $6,000

According to figures obtained from the police department, with the exception of the chief and assistant chief, not one man on the police force will be making over $8,000 next year.

Some other interesting figures show that of the eight man force, six of these men hold down extra jobs. All of the men are married and all have at least one child.

The two officers who do not have extra jobs, work a six-day week for the police department in order to supplement their income with overtime wages.

The men who have extra jobs say they must have them in order to make ends meet.

One officer said that policemen are in effect expected to be the pillars of society and honesty. They are expected to live in decent homes and conduct themselves decently at all times. And they are expected to be able to pay their bills just like everyone else.

He feels that this type of living is impossible on the wages that police are paid in East Stroudsburg.

Dry job

Another officer dryly commented, "They (council) frown on police going into bars. We can't even afford to go into a bar."

Another interesting sidelight aside from money, is that East Stroudsburg police have not one paid holiday.

They do not get any compensation for working holidays. On their paycheck, it is just like any other day.

When you ask any of them where they think the money will come from, they all tell you the same thing, "The borough has the money." Some bring up the subject of the occupation tax just dropped by the council.

Council abolished the tax to give residents "a break." Besides it was only bringing in between $9,000 and $10,000 per year.

The police feel that this could have been applied to police salaries to bring them up to $6,000.

One officer even went so far as to hint that the tax may have been dropped because of elections which will be held in May.

Chief Quick is very outspoken when it comes to commenting on his department. He isn't concerned about his own salary. He is concerned about his men, and he is most concerned about the services that his force offers and the efficiency with which they go about it.

Two subs

Quick says, "How can a man hold down two jobs and be expected to be efficient at both of them. One of the jobs is going to suffer. The man is going to be tired and eventually he will get to the point where he will throw in the towel."

Council and residents have the right to expect the best in police protection," he added. "But how can they expect this when they don't pay the wages to give a man any incentive to do a good job?"

Chief Quick would prefer to have all of his men working at only one job, the job of being a policeman, but he says that he realizes he cannot ask them to do this.

However, in spite of having to hold down two jobs, Quick has nothing but the highest regard for his men and the job they have been doing.

"They have done a terrific job in the last year and I am really proud of them," Quick said.

As every coin has two sides, so does every story. Council members were contacted to give them a chance to express their feelings and reactions to the Police question.

Council members all generally agreed that, in their opinions, the raises were more than fair. They also agreed that they would like to see their policemen making a minimum of $6,000 and that council was heading in this direction as fast as possible.

Councilman George Stetler said, "I feel that the salaries we have granted them are fair to the police department and fair to the taxpayers."

"I realize that we all would like to make more money, but I also realize and feel that we have the taxpayers to contend with," he said.

Stetler also added, "There are a good many taxpayers in East Stroudsburg who aren't making what the police are making, yet these are the people who are supporting the police with their tax dollars."

Councilman Wade Arnst said, "I feel we did a pretty good job with the raises and I hope that this next year we can bring them up to $6,000." "I would like to see them get all they can get, but this just isn't possible at this time."

"I thought they would be well satisfied with this raise this year. We talked about their salaries within council at great length and these are the figures that we decided upon," Arnst added.

Councilman Kenneth Knerim stated, "I feel the council was very fair with a $500 increase."

He went on to explain that the majority of police pay must come out of tax money and that with the tax money available and expected, council did the best it could in the situation.

In regard to converting the monies received from the occupation tax which has since been abolished, Knerim said that it had no bearing on the police salary.

As far as the moonlighting practice of the police is concerned, Knerim said that eventually it will have to be stopped. He said it would probably be stopped when the police salary reaches the minimum figure of $6,000.

He agreed that a policeman who is moonlighting cannot possibly be able to do the best job as a policeman.

Mayor Thomas Kistler said, "It would be very nice if we had the money to give them more. They will get more when the time comes that the finances are available."

Mayor agrees

Kistler pointed out that he was in agreement that they should have a minimum salary of $6,000, "I feel too that they should get it up there, but to take it all in one jump is too much to expect."

"I am sure that council will eventually see fit and be in a position soon to meet the minimum they request," he added.

"If I were a patrolman and I got a $500 raise, I think I would be quite happy."

He also explained about the meeting in July in which the police said they were promised a $6,000 minimum. He said that the police were told that an attempt would be made to get the minimum set at $6,000, but that no deadline was mentioned and no promises were made.

Kistler also mentioned the additional benefits that police get apart from salaries such as insurance and the uniforms are supplied by the borough.

Councilman Pearley Hunt said, "I think it would be good to up the patrolmen a little. I would like to see them make a living wage and I really think they should have a minimum of $6,000, but the money isn't available."

He agreed that having police officers who moonlight is not the best situation. Hunt said that perhaps council could look into the situation.

"I always did go forward with the police department and their salaries because they have been doing a good job and they should be compensated. I'll look into it," Hunt concluded.

Councilman Jack Wallie said, "I think the increase was more than fair. We have to consider the taxpayers too. I would be very happy to push to the $6,000 figure even next year, but it is a bit too much this year."

Wallie complemented the police on the job they have been doing and added that if they continue to perform well, it wouldn't be unreasonable to see them continuing to receive salary increases.

Thus the consensus of council's opinion is that every member would like to see the East Stroudsburg police achieve a minimum salary of $6,000, but at the present time, this is not possible.

Funds have to be considered in the matter and it is quite evident that East Stroudsburg doesn't seem to have the funds, according to council.

Every councilman questioned seemed to feel that the police department was well worth a minimum of $6,000 and even more, but it doesn't seem likely that this will become a reality in the near future.

Hunting fatality recorded

STROUDSBURG — The first known fatal hunting accident for the year in Monroe County occurred Thursday afternoon when a 40 year old New Jersey man suffered a heart attack while dressing a deer he had just shot.

Vincent DePietro, of 9 Robert Court, Lodi, N.J., was pronounced dead at 2:05 p.m. in Barrett Township by two doctors, friends who were the victim's hunting companions. They are Dr. George Peck, Passaic, N.J., and Dr. Alvin Mancusi-Ungara, Mt. Clair, N.J.

Monroe County Coroner John C.F. Foelker and Barrett Township police chief William Everett investigated and confirmed the accident.

It was reported that DePietro had shot a six-point buck at 1:45 p.m. and was dressing it when he was stricken. The two doctors tried to revive him. According to Dr. Peck, DePietro had a history of a cardiac condition.

He is survived by his wife, Josephine, and parents at home.

Funeral services and burial will be in Lodi. The William H. Clark funeral home is handling local arrangements.

This photo by Rod MacLeod could be called, "A Rose on Ice." Actually, the rose bud was covered by ice when temperatures plunged Thursday and gusts of wind reached 50 miles per hour.

Area shakes, sways in gusty winds

STROUDSBURG — A full day's fury of high velocity winds combined with cold temperatures swept the Poconos Thursday after a windy snow storm left more damage in the northwest corner of Pennsylvania.

Winds approached strong to gale force velocity according to Avoca airport weather bureau, with a sustained velocity of 23 miles per hour and gusts to 46 mph. When sustained velocities reach 39 mph, storm warnings are announced.

William B. Hagerty, weather bureau reporter at Neola, said he measured gusts up to 52 mph during mid-afternoon and sustained velocities at 25 to 30 mph. Sources at Tobyhanna Army Depot recorded winds at 25 mph with gusts to 42 mph at two-hour intervals.

The high winds started about 8 a.m. and reached a peak shortly after noon but continued at relatively high level most of the day and night. The wind is expected to diminish today with snow flurries in high altitude areas.

Hagerty said the sudden snow storm lasted about 15 minutes and with flurries measured one inch of snowfall by Thursday night.

Contributing to the freezing conditions were combined high winds and low temperatures which ranged in the low 30's. Temperature and wind both effect heat loss from exposed flesh and the equivalent temperature is expressed in wind chill factor.

Considering this factor in relation to Thursday's conditions, a wind at 30 mph combined with 30 degree temperature would be the same as minus two degrees Fahrenheit with no wind.

Comparably at 10 mph, the same temperature it would be 16 degrees and at 50 mph, minus seven degrees.

Pennsylvania Power and Light reported minor interruption at Blakeslee and Fern Ridge area from Route 80 south.

Blue Ridge Broadcasters, Inc., of Stroudsburg lost channel eight for 45 minutes when a wire on the antenna was torn loose.

E.S. board reelects Sommer; director critical of band

EAST STROUDSBURG — The East Stroudsburg Area School Board reelected Irving Sommer as president and Martin Smith as vice president during a reorganization meeting Thursday at the Middle Smithfield Elementary School.

In other business, board member Samuel Kupiszewski objected for more than 15 minutes to the board recognizing the accomplishments of former East Stroudsburg High School bandmaster

Robert Zellner.

The United States High School Band Organization has given national recognition to the East Stroudsburg High School Band of 1962 as "first-chair members of America."

This is a singular high honor for an American high school band but Kupiszewski did not go along with the majority of the board's thinking in praising the school band's accomplishments.

Kupiszewski believed the board was reflecting "in past glories." He cited that high school band mothers were currently criticizing the efforts of present East Stroudsburg bandmaster John Casagrande.

The board took sharp exception with Kupiszewski's views, especially board member Ernest Farmer and superintendent Mrs. Pauline Peterson. Both claimed that Casagrande was doing an excellent job in the East Stroudsburg music department.

Second loss for Pen Argyl

Stroudsburg High cagers snap 22-game losing streak, 62-56

By TED WISMER
Record Sports Editor

PEN ARGYL — The dry spell is over for the Stroudsburg High School basketball team because of a little thing called hustle.

The Mounties snapped their 22-game losing streak Thursday night with a 62-56 victory over Pen Argyl as all seven players used by coach Tony Romano came through with clutch plays at the right time.

Stroudsburg, which opens its home season tonight against always strong Nazareth, was far from a polished five but made up for its mistakes with all-out hustle.

The Mounties made good use of a zone press to force the Knights (0-2) to commit many turnovers, and on offense worked the give and go several times for easy baskets.

For the second straight game the Knights' Bob Kauffman got into early foul trouble and sat out almost two periods.

Pen Argyl outscored the Mounties 6-2 in the opening minutes of the third period to take a 38-35 lead, its last of the night.

Stroudsburg then reeled off 11 quick points before Kauffman halted the spurt with a layup.

John Granger started the spurt with a short jump. Dave Crane, playing in his first varsity game although a senior, grabbed a missed foul by Bill Weber and put it in to put the visitors on top to stay.

Weber, who led all scorers with 23 points, then hit a foul and a field goal, Granger another jumper and Dale Marsh converted a steal into a two-pointer. The spurt gave the Mounties a 46-38 lead with 2:05 left in the period.

Early in the final period with Stroudsburg on top 52-43, the Knights put on their own spree.

Pen Argyl outscored the Mounties 11-4 to cut the deficit to 56-54 with 2:11 left in the game. Scott Young accounted for both Stroudsburg field goals with clutch baskets inside. Kauffman had the final five points for Pen Argyl on three fouls and a layup.

But with 1:20 left Young stepped to the foul line and made two fouls. Stroudsburg regained the ball when Kauffman committed an offensive foul and seconds later Mel Abel also made a pair of fouls.

Kauffman matched those two fouls but with only two seconds showing on the clock Weber also hit twice from the foul line.

Slow start

The game got off to a slow start as the score was only 6-4 in favor of the Mounties after the first four minutes.

Then with the Mounties holding an 8-7 lead, Abel made his first appearance and quickly accounted for five straight points to put the visitors on top, 13-9.

After Sam Bray and Granger traded three-point plays, a steal by Bath with only one second left in the period knotted the count at 16-16.

Only some strong rebounding by Bray kept the Knights in the game in the second period. Bray had three field goals and two fouls in the period.

But Stroudsburg took a 33-32 halftime lead thanks to two straight three-point plays by Weber in the final 90 seconds of the period.

Weber and Granger led the winners with 23 and 10 points in that order. Kauffman led the Knights with 19 while Bray had 13 and Bath 11.

Pen Argyl salvaged the junior varsity game, 55-50. Dwight Repsher, with 19, and Gerald Gergar, with 10, led the winners. Game scoring honors went to the losers' Craig Patcher with 24. Mike Wells contributed 10.

76ers coast to 14th win, 109 to 92

CHICAGO (UPI)—The Philadelphia 76ers seized a 33-point lead in the first half Thursday night and coasted to a 109-92 victory over the Chicago Bulls for their 14th win in 20 National Basketball Association games this season.

The Bulls could tally only 16 points in the opening period and 13 in the second session while the 76ers, hitting 56.8 of their shots from the floor, posted 34 and 28 points in the two quarters for a 62-29 margin. Thereafter, the Bulls outscored Philadelphia by five points in the third period and by 11 in the fourth but were much too far behind to catch up.

Chicago's Bob Boozer grabbed scoring honors for the game with 33 points, but Philadelphia's Bill Cunningham had 23, Wally Jones netted 19 and Hal Greer 18 for the winners. It was the 18th defeat for the Bulls in 28 games.

Canadiens tied by Boston, 2-2

BOSTON (UPI) — Boston Bruins center Phil Esposito scored both goals against his brother, rookie Montreal goalie Tony Esposito, Thursday night to give the Bruins a 2-2 tie with the Canadiens.

Phil, the elder of the two brothers by one year at 26, got his 14th goal of the season in the first period and tied the game in the third period.

Bobby Rousseau and Yvan Cournoyer got the Montreal goals in the second and third periods as the Canadiens struggled to regain the top spot in the National Hockey League's Eastern Division.

N. C. State, Manhattan gain wins

NEW YORK (UPI)—North Carolina State, its tight zone defense forcing New York University to shoot from outside, coasted on the marksmanship of Vann Willford to a 61-49 victory Thursday at Madison Square Garden.

In the first game of the doubleheader before 4,413 fans, Brian Mahoney led Manhattan College to a 69-63 decision over Long Island University.

North Carolina State's Wolfpack took early leads of 9-1 and 16-3 on the way to a 33-19 halftime margin over NYU's cold-shooting Violets. Willford was the game's top scorer with 23 points. Jim Signorile led NYU with 13. In the first half, NYU hit only 32.1 per cent of its baskets and sank only one of its 10 free throws. Almost eight minutes elapsed in the game before NYU made its first goal from the outside.

In the first game, Manhattan scored eight straight points in the last four minutes to break a tie with LIU and then held off a late rally to gain the triumph.

Buckhorns defeat Kingsmen

CRESCO — A 29-point third period carried Wallepaupack High School to a 72-59 decision over Pocono Central Catholic Thursday night.

Now 3-1 for the season the Buckhorns broke a 9-8 tie after the first eight minutes by moving out to a 30-24 halftime lead. Then in the third period the visitors outscored the host five 29-19.

Three players hit for twin figures for the winners with Pete Nell showing the way with 20. Steve Wilson added 14 and Russ Kranich 10.

For the losers, now 0-2 in regular season play, Tom Lewis pumped in 18, Paul Katchmere 17, Jon Rush 11 and Joe Finnerty 10.

The Kingsmen salvaged the JV contest, 48-38.

Boilermakers set school point mark

LAFAYETTE, Ind. (UPI)—Purdue blasted North Dakota 116-84 Thursday night as the Boilermakers set an all-time school basketball scoring mark.

Purdue, which lost its opener last Saturday to UCLA, eclipsed by one point the 115-point show in 1962 against Notre Dame.

Sophomore George Faerber, a six-foot-five ace from St. Louis, came off the bench in the first half and sparked the Boilermakers from a three-point deficit to a 57-46 halftime lead over the Sioux in the first meeting ever between the two teams.

Purdue's scoring ace, Rick Mount, topped all scorers with 31 points, while Herm Gilliam got 23 and Faerber added 18. Al Jenkins got 16 to lead North Dakota.

Both teams were hot from the floor.

Temple defeats Lehigh, 77-62

BETHLEHEM — Joe Cromer scored 19 points Thursday night to lead Temple to a 77-62 victory over Lehigh.

Lehigh stayed close through most of the first half, but the Owls took a 43-34 lead at intermission.

Three baskets by Jack Kirschling and two by Cromer helped Temple pull ahead to its eventual victory margin—15 points—at 59-44.

Kirschling, who came off the bench, had 16 points and John Baum had 15 points and 21 rebounds for Temple. Bob Fortune scored 18 points and grabbed 16 rebounds for Lehigh.

Detroit defeats Rangers

DETROIT (UPI)—Rookie Ed Hatorum celebrated his 21st birthday two days early with his first National Hockey League goal Thursday night as the Detroit Red Wings handed the East Division-leading New York Rangers a 4-2 defeat.

Hatorum, one of three Detroit players who turn 21 this season, put the Wings into a fifth-place tie with idle Chicago by converting a Nick Libelt pass into a 35-foot goal that put the Wings 2-1 in the first period.

Kent Douglas opened the scoring by firing in a 55-footer which bounced off kneeling New York defenseman Arnie Brown past helpless goalie Ed Giacomin.

Pete Stelmowski expanded the Detroit lead at 2:44 of the second period by taking a rebound on Giacomin's left and putting it in a six-inch space between the netminder's elbow and the post. Some two minutes later, the lead grew to 4-1 when Frank Mahovlich tipped in a booming shot by Douglas for his first goal in eight games.

New York scored when Rod Gilbert bounced a shot in past Red Wings goalie Roger Crozier by using an unidentified player's skate and the Rangers got their first-period tally when Jim Neilson intercepted a pass near the blue line and connected on a 45-foot slapper, which Crozier apparently did not spot.

Crozier was brilliant in goal and defenseman Bob Baum drew prolonged ovals in each period for his outstanding play in helping keep the Rangers' guns silent.

Bullets top LA; regain Eastern lead

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Highlighted by Gus Johnson's explosive third period, the Baltimore Bullets romped to a 108-90 National Basketball Association victory over the sluggish Los Angeles Lakers Thursday night to regain the Eastern Division lead.

Earl Monroe led the Bullets with 26 points but it was Johnson, who had been ejected from a game earlier this week, who tallied 12 of his 17 points in the third period as Baltimore raced from a 50-43 halftime lead into a commanding 81-66 margin.

Jack Marin led defense-minded Baltimore by holding Elgin Baylor to 16 points while Wilk Chamberlain, who was benched for the fourth quarter by coach Bill Van Breda Kolff, scored only 17 points for the Lakers.

Owner concedes players not all wrong in some matters

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Marvin Miller, executive director of the Major League Baseball Players Association, labelled Paul Richards' blast at the players "absolute drivel" Thursday.

Miller, however, said he still hoped some agreement could be reached because he felt sure there were "cooler heads" among the club owners.

The distinct possibility of a break-through between the Players Association and the owners shaped up for the first time since these baseball meetings began when one owner conceded, "the players aren't 100 per cent wrong in some of their arguments."

Their principal one is that they be permitted to share in national television and radio receipts for the first time. The players are demanding a new benefit plan for the owners before agreeing to sign their contracts for next year.

A stalemate appeared to have developed late Wednesday when Miller, speaking for the Players Association, announced that virtually all the players, including such stars as Mickey Mantle, Willie Mays, Bob Gibson, Pete Rose, Al Kaline and Carl Yastrzemski had agreed not to sign their contracts before a new benefit plan was ratified by all the players.

Miller accused some clubs of trying to "pressure" players into signing and using "delaying tactics" in negotiations with the players over increased pension benefits.

It became more and more obvious that all the owners are not in complete accord with a method of procedure.

One of them, Gene Autry, of the California Angels, said if pressed by the players he "might close up shop" for a year or so.

"I think I can afford it a little better than the players can," Autry said.

On the other hand, John J. Gaherin, counsel representing the owners, said, "under the guidance and direction of the Player Relations Committee, we will continue to push for a speedy conclusion."

Richards, in charge of all baseball operations for the Atlanta Braves, was the most outspoken for management.

He said Miller was speaking only for "some of the rabble rousers and greedy players" and not for the real rank and file.

"If that happened," he went on, "the owners would be way ahead. They could keep the TV receipts, pay less money in salaries and draw just about as many people as they will anyway."

Miller's reply to Richards was immediate.

The head of the Players Association said Richards' statements were "absolute drivel" and everybody knows it.

Mike Sawka advances in 840 Classic

STROUDSBURG — Clara Wright, Tannersville, and Mike Sawka, Stroudsburg, won preliminary matches on Tuesday in the 840 Classic Bowling Tourney this week.

Both matches were close. Sawka won the men's match by just one pin with 583 on games of 212-190 and 181. Al Kresge, Saylorsburg, R. D., came to within one pin, 582, with a final 223 game. Oscar Woolever, Cherry Valley, scored 543 and Joe Gillespie, Cresco 481.

Clara Wright won the ladies' prelim by eight pins with 557 on games of 184-211 and 162. Elizabeth McDaniels, East Stroudsburg, rolled 548. Alice Marsh, Marshalls Creek, 491, and Jane Ann Bartholomew, Stroudsburg, 479.

Sawka will bowl in the men's first semi-final on February 23 and Wright will roll in the ladies' third semi-final on March 9, 1969.

"If Mr. Richards thinks the national networks will pay $49.5 million for watching minor leaguers, he has another thing coming. It's equally true that fans all over the country come out to see major leaguers play. The fans will not pay major league prices to watch minor leaguers play."

Miller said he did not think Richards' sharp criticism of the players would constitute an unbreachable barrier between them and the owners.

"I think there are cooler heads among the owners," he said. "Because of that fact, and given some reasonableness, I think an agreement can be reached."

Another meeting between the Players Association and the owners group, ninth in the current series, is scheduled for New York Tuesday, although some baseball men were trying to get both sides together again here before these meetings end Saturday.

In the only other action Thursday, Robert Short of Minneapolis, who purchased the Washington Senators on Tuesday, was unanimously approved as the new owner by the American League.

Trading activity, which has been brisk if not exactly earthshaking the first few days, came to a temporary halt although the Houston Astros said, "we've still got a couple of things going."

The Astros have made three of the eight deals swung at these meetings.

Don Hoak, former Pittsburgh third baseman, was named manager of Columbus of the International League while John Clapp was appointed general manager.

Ronnie sees $$

When you and I look over the Riverside Raceway, we probably see 2.6 miles of tooth decay, nose bleeds, blood clots, fire hazards, insurance claims and scrap metal in our mind's eye.

The "S's" look like broken vertebrae and the main straight, the automotive equivalent of a dive off a high building. God has the black flag.

But Ronnie Bucknum is a race driver, one of the best. And when Ronnie looks out there, the main straight looks to him like $30,000 in new bills. The "S's"? The "S's" look like (in order): 1) a new mink for his wife; 2) a half-ownership in an apartment house; 3) three weeks in Acapulco; 4) a new stereo, and 5) a portfolio of stocks.

He doesn't see a car burning, he sees the mortgage burning. He doesn't see oil leaking, he sees it pumping.

The psychiatrists see all kinds of reasons why a guy climbs in a speeding car that goes faster than he can think, see or act. The only reason Ronnie Bucknum can see have George Washington's picture on them.

Ronnie Bucknum was born to drive a race car. Whatever symmetry of hand and eye it took, he didn't have to work for it, buy or borrow. It came with the rest of him. The first race he ever saw, he won.

Envy pre gaffers

"I look at golfers and I see all that money they get and I think 'Wow! I wish I had thought of that!' I mean, you don't catch fire on the fourth tee. You might hit a tree with a shot. But you don't hit it with your head. You might bogey qualifying. But you don't need a doctor."

Ronnie Bucknum was so good as a sports car racer that, when he won 24 out of 25 races with a British car, they kicked it out of the class — and he stepped into a smaller, slower car and won 20 out of 24 races. It was clear they shouldn't have banned the car but the driver. Bucknum was probably the outstanding club racer in the area in the 60s.

His switch to Grand Prix international racing was so promising that he was one of the young drivers the Japanese tapped for their entry into motor racing. Rubbing wing nuts with the tilted hand-kissing, heel-clicking chauffeurs of the European circuit made Ronnie look down his longnose at American oval racing — until he saw that the payoff at Indianapolis required a fleet of armored trucks. He made the grid at Indy in 1967 at a dizzying 162.2 m.p.h. qualifying — only to get bumped by a faster car.

Normally, any race in which 162-plus m.p.h. couldn't even make you 33rd best should send the driver back to cars with radios in them. But to Bucknum, the track was paved with greenbacks. "The Nurburgring has 173 corners per lap, Indy has two," he was fond of pointing out. Besides, you couldn't hit a tree at Indy.

Bucknum started 18th at Indy last year and moved to 10th before the car caved in. But it was at the Irish Hills in Michigan that Ronnie Bucknum became a certified Indy-type driver when he beat a field that included Bobby Unser, A. J. Foyt, Mario Andretti and every leadfoot legend in American track in a race that was half as long as Indy but 10 per cent faster.

A win like that and suddenly you don't have to run in hand-me-down cars any more. You go for the pole, not the 10th row. Which is why Foyt, Mario and Bobby will be keeping an eye in their rear-view mirror for Ronnie Bucknum at the Rex Mays 300 at Riverside Sunday. If they're not careful, the only way they may be able to see him is in his rear-view mirror — or endorsing the check at the finish line.

Morrall remains Colts QB

By STU CAMEN

UPI Sports Writer

Johnny Unitas may get a chance to continue his education today.

Unitas, the National Football League's premier quarterback, has missed practically the entire season this year because of a sore elbow. However, he saw some action last Sunday when he took over for Earl Morrall in the third quarter with Baltimore holding a 31-0 lead over Atlanta. The Colts went on to a 44-0 rout with Unitas hitting on five of 10 pass attempts for 54 yards. But, he was far from satisfied with his performance.

"I was like Ned in the first reader. I was not up to standard," complained Unitas, who certainly has seen better days.

"One of the problems when you haven't played much is picking up the throwing channels. It is one that will iron itself out with play, as will my timing," Unitas added.

However, gaining additional playing time could be another problem for Unitas in view of the season-long performance turned in by his replacement, Morrall.

The Colts' "Super Sub" hit on 17 of 23 passes for 239 yards and two touchdowns against the Falcons to take over as the NFL's top passer. And Baltimore Coach Don Shula figures to stick with Morrall through the club's final two games, key contests against the Green Bay Packers and the Los Angeles Rams.

The Colts rate as six-point favorites over the Packers, who are fighting to stay alive in the Central Division race, for Saturday's nationally televised battle.

On Sunday, the Rams, only a half game behind the Colts in the Coastal Division, are favored by 13 over the Chicago Bears, the Cleveland Browns, needing only one more victory to clinch the Century Division crown, are 14-point choices over Washington. San Francisco is three over Minnesota and St. Louis and New York are pick-

No line was established on the New Orleans-Philadelphia, Atlanta-Detroit and Dallas-Pittsburgh games. Dallas has clinched the Capitol Division title while the others are no longer in the running for title considerations.

The Packers, going up against the NFL's toughest defense, may be forced to play without quarterback Bart Starr, who is still nursing bruised ribs which he re-injured last Sunday against San Francisco. The Colts are riding a six-game winning streak, during which time they scored 172 points while allowing only 29, and posted three shutouts. Baltimore has not permitted its opponents a touchdown in the last three games.

The Rams, taking advantage of the new found combination of Roman Gabriel to Wendell Tucker, which has connected for four touchdowns in the last two games, will be trying hard not to look past the dangerous Bears toward their season finale against the Colts which will probably decide the Coastal Division champion. The Bears,

Penn State, Syracuse each have 20 victories

UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa. (UPI)—The game between Orange Bowl bound Penn State and Syracuse here Saturday before an estimated 42,000 fans at Beaver Stadium and millions of television viewers points up one of the closest rivalries in college football.

The teams go into their season finale with each showing 20 victories and five ties in the rivalry.

The Nittany Lions have a 9-0 record this season, are ranked third nationally and a victory over Syracuse would be the best showing since the school began intercollegiate football competition in 1887. Syracuse is 6-3.

Syracuse has won four of the last five games and has denied the Lions a victory at their home field since 1962. The Lions won that game by 20-19, a margin that was preserved when Harrison Rosedale blocked a Syracuse field goal attempt in the last minute of play.

Like the series, the scores also were close, with nine points the biggest gap in the last five games.

The game originally was scheduled for Oct. 19 but was moved back because of television time. The last televised game between the rivals was in 1966 when Syracuse won 12-10.

The teams played five common rivals this season—Pitt, Navy, UCLA, Maryland and West Virginia. West Virginia tripped the Orange 23-6.

The upset by the Mountaineers puzzled Joe Paterno, Penn State coach.

"It's difficult to believe that Syracuse was beaten that badly by West Virginia," Paterno said. "The Mountaineers got a couple of quick scores and Syracuse was never able to catch up."

Compounding Paterno's concern is the Orange's unbalanced line on offense.

"We never play teams with such an unbalanced line," he said. "We must make numerous adjustments with our defensive linemen. When you look at a balanced line all season and suddenly an unbalanced line is thrown against you, it takes a while to become accustomed to it."

despite the absence of injured Gale Sayers, are tied with Minnesota for the Central Division lead, a half game ahead of the Packers.

The Vikings must find a way to stop a souped-up Forty Niner offense which has accounted for 92 points in the last three weeks in victories over Pittsburgh and Green Bay and a tie with Los Angeles. Minnesota is also seeking to perk up its own offense which has been held to three touchdowns in the last four games, none in the last two weeks.

Cleveland, the hottest team in the NFL with seven straight wins, has beaten the Redskins the last nine times the two teams have met. The Browns are paced by leading rusher Leroy Kelly, who has picked up 1,073 yards on the ground while scoring 18 touchdowns, only four shy of Sayers' league record set in 1965. Sonny Jurgensen, who missed Washington's last game, a 29-20 loss to Dallas on Thanksgiving Day, because of the flu, is expected to return to action.

St. Louis goes into its game against the Giants knowing it must win while the Browns lose to Washington to throw the Century Division title up for grabs when the two clubs meet Dec. 14.

Chargers, Chiefs top AFL contest

By GREG GALLO

UPI Sports Writer

The Army medics might have given the San Diego Chargers just the right medicine they needed to get back into the Western Division race.

The Chargers, who have already lost two of their star performers in linebacker Chuck Allen and kick returner and cornerback Speedy Duncan, were in danger of losing the services of Dick Post and Jeff Staggs for the rest of the season. However, the Army rejected both players because they were physically unfit for the military. Post, the team's leading rusher, has a damaged knee and Staggs, a defensive standout, has a bad shoulder.

But both players will be in the lineup Sunday when the Chargers take on co-leaders of the West, the Kansas City Chiefs. It has become a must game for San Diego, who trail the Chiefs and the Oakland Raiders by a full game. If they can get by Kansas City the Chargers could force a three way tie in the West by beating Oakland on Dec. 15. If the three teams are deadlocked at the end of the season, San Diego, by luck of a draw, will play the winner of the Raider-Chief playoff for the division title.

But Coach Sid Gilman will be satisfied with one victory at a time. His first objective will be to beat Kansas City, who won an earlier meeting 27-20.

"We beat them twice last year and should have won this year," commented the coach. "If we don't run out of people, we'll give them a game this time."

Thanks to the Army, the Chargers will have two more very "healthy" football players besides the talents of John Hadl, Lance Alworth and Russ Smith.

Kansas City has won three in a row since losing to Oakland. The Chiefs' offense is headed by Len Dawson, the league's leading passer, and the running of Mike Garrett and Robert Holmes. Their awesome defense has buried enemy quarterbacks 32 times and intercepted 28 passes, tops in the AFL.

Buffalo and Houston meet in the Astrodome on Saturday. The Bills, who are in the running for the draft rights to O. J. Simpson, have been coming on the past two weeks behind their fifth string quarterback Ed Rukowski. Buffalo dropped their last two games by a total of five points and almost upset the Raiders last week.

Oakland faces an unpredictable Denver team that has shown offensive punch behind spunky quarterback Marlin Briscoe, who threw for three touchdowns last week against San Diego.

The high-flying New York Jets are home to play the Cincinnati Bengals and Coach Weeb Ewbank has announced that he will substitute freely to give his starters a needed rest.

Walls separating towns, campuses tumbling down

By ASSOCIATED PRESS
Shaken by campus violence and public criticism, American universities are groping for their mission in a time of momentous change.

Should they be ivory-tower retreats devoted exclusively to education? Or should they commit their resources fully to the struggle for the better life going on in the communities around them?

The dilemma is sharpened by insistent demands for relevance in higher education from students and from activists on and off the campus.

It has stirred clashing opinions from prominent educators trying to define the proper role of the university in the midst of today's social upheavals.

Former Columbia University Dean of Faculties Jacques Barzun criticizes what he terms the university's compulsion "to resemble the Red Cross more than a university."

Barzun said at a recent news conference that professors diverted from their teaching duties by outside involvement are offering what he called "idiotically" specialized courses instead of liberal education.

"Since 1945, the universities have been doing nothing but innovate—take on things they had no ability or means of performing and that's why they're in their present mess—financially and spiritually," Barzun said.

Differing with Barzun is Clark Kerr, former president of the University of California at Berkeley and now head of the Carnegie Commission on the Future of Higher Education.

"It is a question," said Kerr, "of whether universities should serve the people in the urban ghettos or the military-industrial complex, or whether they want to serve criticism and dissent or the status quo."

As the controversy builds, the barriers which have so long divided town and gown are coming down as more and more universities and colleges apply their resources to ease the desperate crisis of the cities.

Few mysteries now lurk behind the high walls and thick hedges encircling the campus. Instead, there is more likely to be recognition of aspirations too long held back, of frustrations too deeply ingrained and of the enormous potential for action in university-community cooperation to overcome the problems of urban America.

Set aside in many colleges and universities are old antagonisms engendered by students who have often flaunted privileged positions to bait "townies," who have staged sit-ins and lunch counter revolts in defiance of local traditions. The tax-free status of land occupied by academic institutions—often a major point of contention in so many college towns—no longer looms as a principal issue in local elections. Other problems press more urgently for repair.

Key words are involvement and commitment as more experts emerge from the campus sanctuaries to take up the urban challenge.

Rutgers, with campuses in New Brunswick, N.J., Camden and on the edge of Newark's tense ghetto, also is actively engaged in community involvement.

And so is North Carolina A & T State University, scene of the first lunch counter sit-ins by Negro students in the heart of the South 10 years ago.

Nobody claims the process is complete or that universities and colleges are yet merging entirely with the living communities in which they are located.

The Educational Facilities Laboratory of the Ford Foundation suggests in a recent report that too many institutions still are more interested in bigger student cafeterias and spacious campus lawns than in building new neighborhoods.

The Laboratory, created to assist in educational physical plant problems, urges universities to merge their campuses with communities around them as one important step toward solving the urban problem.

Barbers on wane

CAPE TOWN, South Africa (AP) — The supply of male barbers is diminishing here, authorities report, and women are being trained for the job. "Either you have to go to a salon by appointment only or get your wife to clip your hair," one barber said.

Living costs rise

BUENOS AIRES (AP) — The Argentine Statistical Bureau reported the cost of living increased 11 per cent in the first 11 months this year compared with 26.2 per cent in the same period of 1967 and 24.9 per cent in 1966.

Amendment affects woman's dependents

EASTON — Recent improvements in the Social Security program contain a very important change that affects the dependents of women workers," stated Edward F. Sullivan, District Manager of the Social Security Office in Easton, Pa.

In explaining the new provisions, Sullivan pointed out that in the past, a woman worker had to be both "fully" and "currently" insured before payments could be made to her minor children, her dependent husband or, in the event of her death, to her dependent widower.

The 1967 amendments eliminates the "currently insured" requirement. "Currently insured" means that a person must have at least one and one-half years of work in the three year period before death, disability or retirement.

Now, a child, dependent husband, or dependent widower of a retired, disabled or deceased woman worker can be eligible for benefits if the worker was fully insured, that is, worked a required number of years in a job covered by social security. A husband or widower must meet certain support requirements.

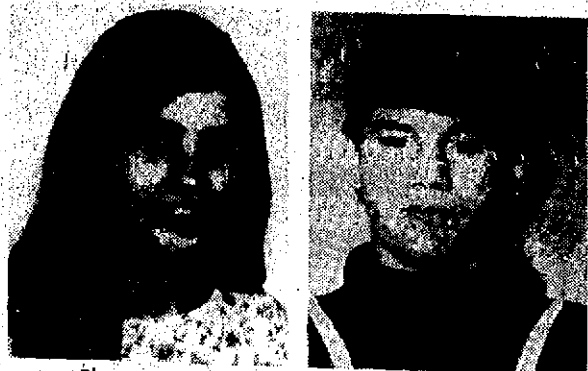

Anyone who feels he may now be eligible for benefits because of the more liberal requirements should get in touch with the Social Security Office, 204 Northampton Street, Easton, Pa. Office hours are from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

French purified

PARIS (AP) — Fed up with fractured English technical terms, the International Council of the French Language is setting up a word bank of French equivalents. Delegates agreed the first job is creation of French words for English or other terms now in use. There was disdain for "Franglais" creeping in with words such as parking, hot money, count-down and blast-off—not to mention le jazz hot of an earlier time.

Apparent suicide

PIETERMARITZBURG, South Africa (AP) — Apparent suicide was the verdict reached this week in the death of British immigrant Kevan Joseph Broughton, 22, whose mutilated body was found last Aug. 13 in the lion cage of the zoo in Athanzimtoti. The circumstantial evidence: Broughton had been treated for schizophrenia, a rough drawing of a lion was found in his effects, a ladder stood against the lion cage wall.

GOING OUT OF BUSINESS!

It won't be long before we close our store — time marches on! The weeks turn to days, the days turn to hours and it's just minutes away. We're on our last mile. What difference does it make to me how little you will pay for these famous brands in mens clothes that are listed below? Every nickel and every dime that I get from you will not be mine. It belongs to my creditors. They say, just sell it, we'll take anything up to 75 per cent off the regular prices — we'll not get any more from an auctioneer. So folks, if I'm to be a Santa Claus, I'll be a Santa Claus to you and let the auctioneer find another Santa Claus!

Male Help Wanted 41

Worried about answering a blind box number ad? (because you don't know who the advertiser is?) If you are worried about answering one of these blind ads—place it in your own firm—simply do this: Place your letter of application in an envelope addressed to the box number and seal it. Then put the envelope in another envelope addressed to the Classified Dept., The Pocono Record, and enclose the names you do NOT want to receive your reply. If one of the companies for individuality you listed placed the ad, we will simply discard your reply, but we cannot return your letter without violating the confidence of our advertisers.

Use Your Wyckoff Charge Account

The series that was modern when it was conceived in 1917 is just as modern today. For years it was the principal way to enjoy the world's best books at popular prices. (The Modern Library was around long before paperbacks.) This year the list has grown to 485 titles, each still hardbound and handsomely jacketed, and each still inexpensive. It's hard to know which is more popular, the books or their prices. Very modern indeed.
